SURPRISES IN WESTON LOVE SUIT

Wife Says Miss White, Who Seeks $50,000 Balm, Denied Alleged Engagement

Mrs. Dorothy A. Kelley Weston, wife of Horace Greeley Weston, the Brookline foreman carpenter, who is bing sued by Miss Mildred E. White, former milliner for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise, was the surprise of the trial today when she took the stand as the final witness for the defence.

The Westons were married in February, 1917, while Weston's alleged love tangles with Miss White and with Miss Helen B. Andrews, the elderly woman who also claimed him as her fiance, were in full swing.

Mrs. Weston testified regarding drives which she took with Weston and Miss White before her marriage; and to a talk which she had with Miss White in a Boston hotel, where the trio stopped for luncheon.

According to her evidence, Miss White said to her: "You are foolish to be spending your time going around with Mr. Weston; he is not of the marrying kind"; and also, "I was never engaged to Mr. Weston."

The case closed with the re-direct examination of Weston.

It was a day of sensations, Attorney Daniel J. Daley, counsel for Weston,

CAPTAIN TAKES STAND AT FISH TRUST TRIAL

The government suit against the so-called "Fish Trust," which is being heard in the United States District Court before Judges Bingham, Johnson and Aldrich, was resumed today when Captain H. W. Nickerson of the fishing schooner Fannie Bell Atwood took the stand. Maurice P. Shaw, who is secretary of the New England Fish Exchange, was excused this morning in order to allow Captain Nickerson to testify, as his boat is ready to sail shortly for the fishing grounds.

The witness, who has been bringing fish into Boston for the past 15 years, testified as to where he caught the fish and stated that he sold his catch to the New England Fish Exchange. He was not always satisfied with prices.

In case of dispute over price Captain Nickerson stated that a committee of two captains and two dealers would be chosen who would chose a fifth member and the dispute was settled by majority vote.

ABDUCTED SCHOOLGIRL A SECRET JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Clayton Edgar (Marion Beulah Jackson), former Dorchester High School girl, whose marriage in June is announced by her mother. For abducting Miss Jackson in 1916, W. P. Southwick is serving a five-year prison term.

Marion Beulah Jackson, the Dorchester high school girl for whose abduction William P. Southwick, a Canadian civil engineer, is serving a five-year sentence in Sing Sing, has been the bride of Clayton Edgar of Brookline since June 29. The fact of the secret marriage was made known through the bride's mother, Mrs. William E. Jackson, now of Quincy.

It was in 1916 that the high school girls of Dorchester were startled by the disappearance of Marion Jackson, who was then but sixteen years old. Police and private detectives engaged in the search failed to locate her for some time, until at the end of three weeks she was found in New York.

From the time of her disappearance until apprehended she had been in the company of Southwick, with whom she was known to have been infatuated. The man who was then 29 years of age, had been married three times, and was then not divorced from his third wife, although he was expecting a decree. His record led the parents of Marion to look upon his attentions with disfavor.

The girl was brought home by her father, and the man arrested and sentenced on the charge of abduction.

HOLD PUGILIST FOR ATTACKING WOMAN

Joe Egan, middleweight prizefighter, was arrested today after a brisk chase and a stiff fight on a charge of assault and battery upon Mrs. Lillian Evans at her home, No. 467 Audubon road, Back Bay, with intent to commit a more serious offence.

Mrs. Evans is now in the City Hospital under treatment for wounds and severe bruises on her head and face. The police say she put up a furious battle to defend herself from Egan before her screams frightened her assailant into running away.

Egan was later held in $2,000 in Roxbury Court for a continued hearing on November 26. He pleaded not guilty.

Arthur Smith, a patrolman attached to the Back Bay police station, was patrolling Audubon road at 3:30 a. m. when he heard screams from No. 462. A man ran out. Smith pursued. The fugitive ran along the Boston & Albany Railroad tracks. When Smith closed up the gap the fugitive turned and fought viciously, so that Smith was obliged to club him into submission.

ROOSEVELT GOING TO EUROPE

Accompanied by Wife, Will Visit Grave of Quentin on French Battlefield

With the American Army of Occupation, Nov. 20.—Delayed).—The President of the United States and an ex-president may be in France at the same time.

President Poincare, who has been taking part in ceremonies connected with the advance of the French and American armies, met and chatted with Captain Kermit Roosevelt of the 7th Artillery, U. S. A., at Bouligny. The French executive told Captain Roosevelt that he had received a letter from former President Roosevelt (father of the captain) in which the ex-President announced that he and Mrs. Roosevelt were coming to France within a fortnight. This would bring him here about the same time as President Wilson.

Captain Roosevelt, who recently arrived here from Mesopotamia, was delighted at the news. During his service with the British forces and before he was transferred to the American army Captain Roosevelt won the distinguished service medal.

President Poincare, during his stay at the American front, called upon General Dickman, commander of the American army of occupation.

During the ceremonies on Sunday a peasant girl of sixteen, attired in her best Sunday dress, presented Madame Poincare with a bouquet of flowers. Although she had a studied speech to deliver, the young lady broke down at the last moment and wept with emotion. The French President kindly kissed her on the cheek and Madame Poincare chatted with her to set her at ease.

WOULD GIVE ESRVICE MEN 3 MONTHS' PAY

Washington, Nov. 21. — Three months' pay would be given each soldier and sailor discharged in the war against Germany upon his being mustered out, under a resolution presented in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Lewis of Illinois.

GIVE UP GERMAN FLEET

U. S. Battleships Join in Impossing Spectacle as Enemy Gives Up Naval Power

London, Nov. 21.—(2:45 p. m.)—All of the ships of the German fleet, with the exception of one battleship, which dropped behind while on the way to the rendezvous in the North Sea, surrendered to the British today.

The transfer of the great German fleet was made strictly according to plan. Official announcement of the surrender was given out by the Admiralty this afternoon in the following statement:

"The commander-in-chief of the Grand Fleet, (Admiral Sir David Beatty), reported at 8:30 o'clock this morning that he had met the first and main installment of the German high seas fleet, which is surrendering for internment."

Later it was announced that the captive ships had anchored off the Firth of Forth (Scottish Coast). Tomorrow it will proceed to Scapa Flow for internment.

In addition to the battleships sixteen more German submarines surrendered to the British navy today, bringing the total up to forty-three U-boats that have been turned over by the Germans in two days.

The surrender today took place off Harwich at the same time that the German battle fleet was giving itself up. One of the German submarines was disabled on its way to the rendezvous in the North Sea.

Fix Prices on Butter, Eggs, Cheese, Bacon

The State Food Administration today decided to regulate the prices of butter, eggs, cheese and bacon.

Following this decision, it immediately issued a schedule of "fair prices" to be charged the consumer and a powerful warning that any retailer who charges excessive prices will be summarily punished.

The new list of minimum and maximum prices is as follows:

Fresh tub butter—64 to 72 cents a pound.

Storage tub butter—56 to 61 cents a pound.

Eggs, candled—55 to 60 cents a dozen.

(It will be noted that while the price of eggs is fixed at the foregoing figures for candled eggs, nothing is said about the fresh eggs. Apparently the dealer is left [illegible] discretion.

Inter-Allied Council Protests Neutrality Violation by Dutch

Paris, Nov. 21.—The inter-allied council has formulated a protest to be immediately dispatched to the government of Holland concerning the violation of Dutch neutrality through the passage of German troops across the province of Limburg.

The Dutch government permitted this contrary to international law, as the German soldiers withdrew from Belgium. Limburg separates Belgium from Germany for some twenty-five miles.

AMERICANS IN LUXEMBURG'S CAPITAL

With the American Army of Occupation, Nov. 21.—Al. of Luxemburg, the small grand ducay lying between Germany and France swarms with American soldiers today.

The doughboys have entered the capital, and General Pershing announced that they would make a formal call upon Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide, the ruler, at noon.

The Mayor of the capital paid a visit to General Dickman, commander of the American army of occupation. Everywhere one looks, there are long columns of marching troops, passing in every direction.

The American lines of communication and supplies are working with the regularity of clockwork. Thousands of negroes are at work repairing the broken roads filling up shell holes and mending the railways.

True to their traditions, the negroes sing lustily as they work. The main railway line, supplying the American army of occupation on the Rhine is almost completed. It will be done in a few days.

The soldier workmen have been lay-

DRIVEN TO DEATH BY WORRY OVER CHILDREN

Worry lest his little grandchildren be run over by railroad trains drove Charles W. Witham, a Lynn contractor, to suicide.

He killed himself by cutting his throat in the basement of the barn street in the same city. His body was found today by his wife, Mrs. Margaret Witham.

One of Mr. Witham's daughters, Mrs. Ida P. Bowers, lives in Medford, near the tracks of the Medford branch of the Boston & Maine. Mr. Witham, who was sixty-three years old, talked repeatedly of the danger of one of the Bowers children getting killed on the track. His family expressed belief today that this fear had preyed on his mind.

He left his house after supper last night, saying he was going over to Medford to see his daughter's family. Instead, however, he went into the barn and ended his life with a razor.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters and three sons. He was well known in Lynn and belonged to local lodges of the Odd Fellows and Knights of Pythias.

'HERO' DIVISION IS WITHDRAWN

News was received in Boston today that the 26th, or New England Division of the American Expeditionary Force, has been withdrawn from the front and sent to a rest camp. This is an indication that the 26th is to be sent home soon.

It has been persistently reported that the New England Division and the 42nd, or Rainbow Division, which were earliest in service on the western front, would be the first ones sent home.

"New England Boys Saved Paris and Civilization"

"There are three numbers on the lips of every boy and girl in France, 'First, Second and Twenty-sixth.' They are the numbers of the three United States army divisions that saved France; yes, saved the world.

"Our boys at the front saved civilization in one of the most ghastly battles in world's history. Remember this, and I hope your grandchildren will remember it.

This was the stirring message by F. C. Walcott of the United States Food Administration to a conference of food administrators and newspaper editors at the State House today.

Mr. Walcott is just back from France, where with Herbert Hoover, Federal Food Administrator, he followed in the wake of the 26th Division, is its glorious advance for the right and democracy. To use his own phrase, he was in France "at the most vital moment in history." Continuing he said:

"On December 12 the first Supreme

$500,000 BEQUEST BY WHITE TO CORNELL

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 21.—By the will of Dr. Andrew D. White, former ambassador to Germany who died here last week, $500,000 of his estate goes to Cornell University. The estate is valued at $900,000. Cornell is to be trustee of property in Syracuse worth $500,000, the income of which will go to relatives during their lifetime. Afterwards it reverts to the college. A bequest of $5,000 is made to Yale.

SENATE CALLS FOR PLANS OF SHIPPING BOARD.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Alarmed by statements of Shipping Board officials that they have employment for 200,000 additional men, the Senate this afternoon adopted a resolution calling upon the board for all information on existing contracts and the steps taken to cancel them. "If the Shipping Board means to go ahead and employ 200,000 men this item alone means an addition to its expenditures of $600,000,000 a year," said Senator Harding of Ohio.

BIGGEST CONCRETE SHIP IN WORLD AT NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 21.—The world's largest concrete vessel, the Faith, arrived here today from Cuba after weathering a stormy voyage. She brought a cargo of sugar. The Faith has sailed more than 12,000 miles since she was launched at San Francisco and has carried all kinds of cargoes.

SAYS ALSATIANS WILL JOIN GERMAN REPUBLIC

Copenhagen, Nov. 21.—The German chancellor, Dr. Ebert, has sent a telegram to the Soldiers' Council of Strassburg, the fortress in Alsace about to be occupied by the French, saying that the people of Alsace Lorraine would exercise the right of self-domination and join the new German republic.

SPEEDY SIGNING OF PEACE TREATY IS EXPECTED

Preliminary Exchanges Between Leading Powers Assure Harmonious Conference.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Optimism regarding the coming peace conference was spreading in official circles here today. The preliminary exchange between the leading powers, in progress ever since the German appeal for an armistice was made, are rapidly bearing fruit. It is believed here that when the peace conference actually assembles in Versailles absolute harmony will be assured.

There has been a frank and open exchange of views on controversial points, it is understood here, and no really serious difference of opinion has developed.

The great issue that must be settled, of course, is the League of Nations, how its powers shall be divided, what shall be the basis of representation, and whether the governing body will be in the nature of the supreme court of the world. Collateral problems such as what the "freedom of the seas" actually means and how the world map shall be remodelled along territorial lines, all will settle themselves as soon as the league plan can be framed satisfactory to the allied powers.

UNANIMITY OF ALLIES.

Some differences of opinion concerning plans has been cleared up as the result of the exchange of views between Washington and the allied capitals. It now is expected that President Wilson, on his arrival in France, will present a concrete proposition on which unanimity among the allies the advocacy and support of the United will be secured. The defeated central powers will accept any plan that has States. That already is a foregone conclusion.

Perhaps nowhere else is it so fully realized that Germany's only hope of resuming her place as a nation among nations depends on her securing the active aid of the United States that it is in Germany proper. Her new leaders realize that isolation must be her portion unless the United States allows her credits and opportunity to enter the markets of the Western Hemisphere. They know that they must accept a dictated peace and it is considered certain here in Washington that the delegates from the enemy countries will gladly follow the lead of President Wilson at the peace table.

ANXIOUS FOR SPEED.

Therefore, if a basis of agreement is prompt among the allies, when the Versailles conference opens, the work of that body will be cut short. With practical agreement on principles secured, the work of reducing the terms to paper will be comparatively short. And the President has been assured that his presence at the conference will make for speed.

It is vitiating no secret to say that all of the nations concerned in the framing of the peace treaty are anxious for speed. They realize that wartime conditions have passed and that the sooner the world is put on a basis of peace the better it will be for all concerned. Assurances have reached Washington that Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George will advocate speed from the very outset of the conference.

It is believed here that the conference will take up at the outset the big outstanding problems that touch on world decisions, and in which every nation is concerned. That will allow the President to make his views plain and will permit the "big four"—Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau and Orlando—to demonstrate their agreement early enough in the session to attract to their support nations that under other circumstances might adopt a "middle of the road" policy. After that all would be plain sailing, and it would be very easy for the President to return home certain that the entire program would be put through.

TO OUTLINE POLICIES.

An early announcement of the make-up of the peace delegation is looked for here. The agitation among members of the Senate to secure representation on that body is growing very strong. Whether it will impress President Wilson sufficiently, however, to change his stand so as to provide for one or two senatorial delegates is known only to himself.

Most officials here do not believe that it will. They declare that up to the present time the Senate has handled when what would be called helpful to the executive in handling the problems of the war and that he can be depended on to continue the policy that has brought results and apparently has been very pleasing to the people of the United States.

When the President addresses Congress one week from next Tuesday on the eve of his departure for France he is expected to make it clear that the new policies of the United States must be shaped with a regard for the permanent welfare of the nation rather than along partisan lines. By inference at least he is expected sharply to criticise certain members of his own party and of the Republicans for over-zealousness in trying to force an immediate surrender by the executive of the extraordinary wartime powers conferred upon him.

G. O. P. SPLIT ON PEACE TRIP BY WILSON

Republicans Are Indifferent to Unanimous Demand by Allies for President at Conference

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Although many of the details of the President's trip to France are settled, the discussion of his going is still the dominant topic in capital conversations.

The Democratic Senators and Representatives are a unit and enthusiastic in favor of his visit. The conservative element of the Republicans in Congress are divided; some are favoring, some disappointingly reticent, and some, like Watson of Indiana and Sherman of Illinois, are out and out in opposition. Watson is to voice in part this opposition in a fiery speech today in the Senate.

The fact that upon an American like the Agamemnon or in any American embassy, either in France or England the President would be technically upon American territory and legally entitled to transact American business, disposes of the objection which has been most seriously urged.

ALLIED APPROVAL UNANIMOUS.

So far as has been heard on this side the foreign view of the President's attendance on the great council is unanimous in approval. A few of the "hitter-orders" of the foreign peoples on this side—those who are clamorous to see the direst punishment inflicted upon Germany, and some who fear that the eminent fairness and utter unselfishness of the President's expressed feeling toward several of the leading questions which will engage the council, together with his inevitably overwhelming influence may defeat the more or less selfish ends of certain nations or interests involved, are expressing in private objections and opposition, which are neither representative nor founded upon reason.

Among those people whose numbers are small there is the statement that as England and France have suffered most and given most of life and blood and property, these nations should be permitted to settle the great questions of the war as they see best and that Mr. Wilson should not be present with the paramount influence which his great character and services have given him to exercise that influence upon the settlement of questions which are so largely European.

The objectors forget that the European nations have been glad to have the benefit of the President's wisdom and diplomacy during the conduct of the war, and the benefit of the vast resources and the manpower those policies have poured into France at the vital and crucial moment.

They should now remember that all this American money and food and blood were contributed for the privilege of helping to establish the ideals of justice and liberty and freedom and international equities for which our people and our President were willing to fight and sacrifice.

WELCOME EXTENDS OVERSEAS.

Against this narrow view which has found some little expression in Washington, there is the swelling chorus of welcome from such lips as Clemenceau's and Lloyd George, and Haig's and Petain, and Orlando of Italy, and the great voice of the French people, and of the English people and of those passionate admirers of the President in the Balkan and Slav countries who have just found their freedom and attribute it to Wilson with a fervor of admiration and confidence which is inspiring and beautiful.

MOTIVE OF HIS VISIT.

When the French Chamber of Deputies formally proposes to remove the ashes of Lafayette from the Cemetery of Picpus to the Pantheon during the stay of the President in Paris, it is an evidence of profound and far-reaching interest with which France looks forward to the great American's visit.

By common consent now it is understood that the two great issues naturally joined together which make the supreme motive of President Wilson's presence at Versailles, are the League of Nations and the freedom of the seas.

Upon the just and equitable establishment of these tremendous questions our President firmly believes hangs the issue of permanent commercial equity and of a safe and sane enduring peace.

It is pretty generally agreed that if these great issues were settled as the President thinks they should be settled, his visit to France would be purely formal and friendly and confined to a formal salutation and greeting at the opening session and the exchange of international expressions and felicitations of rejoicing and good will, after which he would shortly return to Washington.

But with all his tenacious and tremendous convictions mapping around these two questions and brewing them as paramount and indispensable to a proper adjustment of world conditions, Woodrow Wilson would not be Woodrow Wilson if he failed to go in person across the seas to reason and persuade and influence as far as possible the right decision.

President Will Visit Former Battle Fronts While at Peace Parley

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 21.—President Wilson, in addition to attending the peace conference, will visit England and Italy and the former battlefronts, it was learned from authoritative sources today. It was said that the President is anxious to study, first hand, certain conditions that will enter into the reconstruction program.

The transportation of President Wilson and his party is understood to have been taken up at a conference between the President and Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Rainbridge Colby at the White House today.

It was pointed out that the presence of Mr. Colby, who is a high official in the Shipping Board, indicated that arrangements were made to carry the President and his party to Europe in one of the large passenger ships under the jurisdiction of the board.

Although there has been considerable effort on the part of officials to induce President Wilson to make the trip on one of the American battleships, it is thought that this proposal has been rejected by the President as too elaborate. Secretary Daniels was at the conference, it was said, to arrange for convoy facilities for the President's trip.

PAYS FINE FOR ASSAULT ON GERMAN ORDERLY

Christ Williams paid a fine of $20 in Newton Court today for assault and battery on Julius Fischer, a German. Both men are orderlies at the Newton Hospital. The quarrel started in a dispute about the war. Fischer finally accused Williams for not properly disposing of soiled dishes and Williams attacked him with a razor. Fischer is an interned sailor.

AMERICANS LEAVE PRISON CAMP JEERING AT FRIGHTENED FOE

ALLIED DEMAND FOR THE PRESIDENT GROWS

By DAMON RUNYON.

With the First American Army in France, Nov. 21 (By Universal Service). — Two hundred and fifteen American soldiers who had been held prisoners of war by the Germans were brought into the town of Revigny.

"They were pretty much scared of the Americans," said Sergeant Pat J. Long of No. 48 Village street, Reading, Mass., who was taken from the Twenty-sixth division in the bitter fight in Belleau Wood. It took fifty Germans to capture Long, who is a serious, efficient-looking middle-aged chap.

"They said, 'You Americans are wicked fellows,'" he continued.

"They were all mighty glad the war was ending. We had three American lieutenants with us when we marched out. They were James Sweeney of the 26th Division, Charles Hurley of Boston from the 29th, and Leary Fowler of Dallas, Tex."

"You ought to have heard us Josh them Heinies when we left up yonder," said Sergeant Sampson of Chicago, who was one of two men left of his platoon of Company E, 126th Infantry, after a charge.

"They had us at Montmedy first," said Sampson, "but our bombers came over and bombed the place, so we went on strike and refused to work around a railhead that bombers were aiming at. They took us to Gorcy. That's where we were when the fighting stopped.

"We knew the finish was in sight, because the German privates kept telling us what was going on outside. Every day they'd be around saying the war was going to end next day; they were tickled to death about it, too.

Milton Horton of Malta, Mont., who comes from the Ninetieth Division, said: "We knew it was all over, because the flags were flying all over Gorcy when we went out. They certainly looked great."

"They didn't have much to eat themselves, them Dutchmen didn't," said John Howell of Camp Belleville, O., the only man from the First Division in the party, which represented about fifteen American divisions which were on the line in the Argonne-Meuse drive. "I'm going to dream about Dan Patch stew and barley soup as long as I live. Dan Patch stew is horse meat. It was meat from horses that had been killed in battle."

"Them German cooties are terrible," averred Frank Kocurek of Chicago of the 33d Division. "They can bite worse than any I ever saw. We had a stove in the church, so it wasn't so awful cold there. I worked in the kitchen myself."

PEGGY WOOD TO DANCE FOR CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND

Peggy Wood, star in "May-time," musical comedy, at Majestic Theatre. The highest bidder at the theatrical ball at Symphony Hall on December 4 will be given a dance by this talented artist.

U. S. TRANSPORTS START FOR HOME WITH TROOPS

London, Nov. 21.—American transports have already begun to move Yankee soldiers homeward, the Manchester Guardian states today. It says that the latest arrival in England is an aviation unit, which is due in the United States by Thanksgiving.

PEGGY WOOD TO HELP BASKET FUND BALL

Lovely Peggy Wood, star of "Maytime," is going to dance at the theatrical ball and frolic in Symphony Hall, December 4, with the man who will pay the highest sum for the honor. Proceeds of the ball will be for the benefit of the Christmas Basket Fund. The dance with Miss Wood will be auctioned from the stage of Symphony Hall.

The highest bidder will have the pleasure of dancing with this dainty actress who has delighted so many thousands at theatregoers during the long run of her musical comedy in Boston. A leading Bostonian, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, will be the auctioneer. This event should bring out Boston's sporting blood. Who would not give a good round sum to dance with lovely Peggy?

"I think the idea is wonderful," said Miss Wood to a Boston AMERICAN reporter. "It will give me untold pleasure to dance with some gentleman who is willing to offer a sum of money for the benefit of the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund. To be able to contribute in this small way toward Christmas cheer in some home gives me real pleasure. I am sure that every one who can will attend the ball. I feel certain everyone who goes will have a good time."

Auction dances with Misses Maymel and Muriel Barnes, two of the best dancers in the Maytime company, will be features of the program. They are twins and as alike as the proverbial peas in a pod. The highest bidder may have his choice and then the other sister will dance with the second highest. This dance also should result in lots of real fun. The girls are delighted over the idea.

Auction dances with various members of other theatrical companies in Boston are being arranged and will be announced in the Boston AMERICAN. The theatrical folks are all glad to do their utmost to help make the ball a success. All that remains to make it so is the co-operation of the public. Tickets for the ball will be sold at $1 each. No limit will be placed on the number you may buy.

The tickets are now being printed and will be on sale in a short time. The AMERICAN will announce the places where they may be obtained.

SOLDIERS SUPPORT FUND.

Even the boys in France are backing the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund. Private Harold J. Eldridge of H Company, 101st Infantry, part of the brilliant 26th Division, who gets the AMERICAN regularly abroad, read about the fund and how Boston's poor are looking forward to its aid this year, and promptly sent home two one dollar bills, one to be given for himself and the other in memory of his brother, Joseph Eldridge, recently deceased.

Private Eldridge lives at No. 62 Hennington street, East Boston, and has always been an enthusiastic worker for the basket fund.

N. Y. BUILDING WORKERS MAY CALL OUT 150,000

New York, Nov. 21.—A general strike of 150,000 building trades workers is likely to result from the strike of 2,000 dock builders and 20,000 carpenters and allied workers, according to union officials today. The dock builders, some of them employed at army bases, and the carpenters, went out yesterday because of the abolishment of overtime.

tion in this case. He is charging anywhere from 72 cents to $1 for "fresh eggs," claiming for the "fresh egg" that it came from Maine. There is a penalty allowed in the price of fresh tub butter of eight cents a pound, also.

Standard breakfast bacon, fast strip, 45 to 54 cents a pound.

Cheese, whole-milk—25 to 40 cents a pound.

Cheese, Young America—37 to 41 cents a pound.

Chief Richard M. Everett of the Retail Price Division of the Food Administration urges all consumers to report TO HIM any retailers found charging more than the maximum price. He issued this warning to retailers:

"Any store found to be charging more than the allowed margins on these and other foodstuffs listed on the fair price schedule will be published severely. I strongly advise dealers in order to protect themselves to follow exactly the prices as set in the list.

"More than 100 of them have been disciplined in the past for violating these prices. Investigations are being constantly made. Others who may be tempted to profiteer will be shown no leniency.

NAVY PREPARES FOR RELEASE OF MEN

One hundred and eighty-three commanding officers of the United States navy were directed today to receive applications for discharge from active service, made by officers or enlisted men in the navy or marine corps.

These are to be forwarded with recommendations to the Bureau of Navigation, Washington.

It is the purpose of the Navy Department to release all young men who wish to return to school as soon as possible.

The commandant of the First Naval District issued the following statement today about the unrest in anticipation of demobilization.

SWEETHEARTS UPSET.

"The signing of the armistice, and the constant talk of peace seem to have upset a great many of the parents, wives and sweethearts of the men in the service, and created a feeling of uncertainty in the minds of many others, judging from the constant stream of letters which is flowing into the office of the commandant in relation to demobilization.

"The commandant cannot too strongly impress upon the minds of all in the naval service stationed in the First District, the need for constant care to avoid any cessation in their efforts to keep up the spirit and morale of the navy. We cannot afford to relax our efforts to improve ourselves and every branch of the naval service as long as we form part of it, and everyone in the district should appreciate the fact that the signing of an armistice does not necessarily mean peace.

"During the period between the signing of the armistice and the signing of the peace treaty, as well as during the subsequent reorganization, armed forces will be very necessary to enforce the terms of the armistice and the peace.

MEN NEEDED ON TRANSPORTS.

"Even when the peace treaty is signed, the work of the navy will not be completed, for some time to come there will be ample work to do in clearing the coast of mines, and in performing other duty incident to the safe conduct of vessels on the high seas, as all of the army must be returned home before the duties of the navy come to an end.

"While many of us are disappointed because we did not have an opportunity of taking more active part at the front, we must not lose heart, but continue our efforts, and prove to the country that we are as ready now to do our share as we have been at any time."

SURRENDER OF FLEET BY GERMANS

in the ceremonies, which were viewed by King George.

The German battleships turned over included the Kaiser, the Prinz Regent, the Frederick the Great, all 24,700-ton ships, and the battle cruisers Hindenburg, Derflinger and Von Der Tann.

American and French squadrons left the Firth of Forth at 4 o'clock this morning, steaming slowly for the rendezvous.

The British grand fleet, which put out from Harwich, and the French and American naval units got in touch with the German battle fleet at 11 o'clock.

VON TIRPITZ IN FLIGHT.

While the powerful Teuton fleet was delivering itself into the hands of its victors, with five big American battleships holding due part of the fifty-mile line of allied war vessels, Von Tirpitz, with his whiskers shaved off to escape recognition, was skulking away toward the haven of Swiss neutrality.

It was learned on reliable authority today that the allies will occupy Wilhelmshaven and other German naval bases.

The surrender of the German fleet was one of the greatest and impressive spectacles ever beheld on the world's maritime stage.

On the allied ships were King George, Admirals Beatty, Sims and Rodman and a corps of more than 100 journalists and artists of all nations, who will immortalize with pen and brush the greatest naval display in all history.

Admiral Rodman, U. S. N., on the New York, and Captain Beach, commander, led the American squadron today, the other ships being the Florida, Texas, Wyoming and Arkansas. The whole fifty-mile line of warships was headed by the British super-dreadnought Queen Elizabeth, Beatty's flagship, aboard which the King and his heir witnessed the great display.

FOUR HOTELS IN COURT ON 'TRUE NAME' LAW

As the result of the city-wide crusade among the hotels and lodging houses in connection with the enforcement of the "True Name" law, complaints have been made against four hotels and one lodging house.

The New Richwood Hotel, represented by Michael F. Kennedy and Martin Hayes, appeared before Judge Wentworth today, charged with violation of their license, on complaint of Sergeant Michael Trayers. This case was continued until December 12.

In the same court appeared A. F. Arnold, representing the Boston Hotel Company, on a similar charge. Complaint was made by Sergeant W. W. Livingston. The court declined jurisdiction in this case, which was turned over to the Grand Jury. On a like complaint by Sergeant Livingston, Charles H. Innes and William Turtle appeared for the Hotel Plaza Company. This case was continued until November 25.

On complaint of Sergeant Patrick Flattery, the management of the Coolidge House appeared before Judge Brennan, charged with violating their license. The case was continued for two weeks.

Jennie Ritten burg appeared before Judge Brennan, charged with conducting a lodging House at No. 29 Dartmouth street, without a license. She pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

CROZIER MAY BE ARMY ENVOY TO PEACE TABLE

The exclusive announcement in the Boston AMERICAN yesterday that Major-General William Crozier, commanding the Northeastern Department, is to relinquish his important Boston post, was followed today by persistent report that army headquarters on Chauncy street that he is to go to France as one of the army delegates to the coming peace conference at Versailles.

General Crozier attended the first conference at The Hague Peace Palace. He has written interesting accounts of The Hague proceedings. He will speak before the Charitable Irish Society at the City Club tomorrow evening on "Some Incidents of the First Peace Conference at The Hague."

General Crozier has always taken a deep interest in the Hague conference as well as in labor issues, and President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has commended the attitude of General Crozier toward labor, and published a statement to that effect.

After completing his duties at the peace conference as one of its delegates, General Crozier may be summoned to serve on a labor commission.

His appointment to such a commission would be welcomed by President Gompers who would be glad to have his advice on labor and capital problems.

Squeezing a Quarter Extra for Corset Laces Now

Add horrors of war—twenty-five cents for corset laces!

Ladies, arise! Will you tamely submit to this new atrocity?

You have paid a dollar a dozen for eyes; you have given the hotel keepers 200 per cent. profit on bread and butter; you have handed the Elevated 40 per cent. increase in carfares—and kept a stiff upper lip. But now—! As one rude man observed: "That's a squeeze price."

From time immemorial the laces have been "thrown in." Now they throw in only coarse white ones. But the newest thing in stays—whether girdle, golf-hip, or old-fashioned regulars—is pink. If you want the laces to match, whether flesh tint, sunset rose, or plain baby pink, you must "dig down" for a quarter extra. And stays without laces aren't stays at all.

Suggested slogan: "Millions for war tax, but not one cent for laces!"

ARMY LEADERS AT FUNERAL OF MAJ. McDONALD

Private funeral services for Major Fred W. McDonald, commander of the 3d Battalion, United States Guards, who died on Monday following an attack of pleurisy, were held today at the home of his brother, No. 234 School street, Watertown.

Major McDonald was, for the first seven years of the Boston AMERICAN, its foreign advertising manager. He was one of the best-known advertising men in Massachusetts.

Following the private services high mass of requiem was celebrated at the Sacred Heart Church. Rev. Father Coughlin was celebrant and Fathers Spain and O'Gorman, deacon and subdeacon, respectively.

Prominent army men were present at the church service, among them being Major-General William Crozier and Brigadier-General John W. Ruckman. Captain H. Parker of the Spanish War Veterans was also present. Burial was in St. Paul's Catholic Cemetery in Arlington.

Major McDonald served fifteen years in the United States army, including service in the Spanish war and at the Philippine Islands. He was recommended for bravery at La Paz.

Up to the time of his death he acted as provost marshal of Boston. He had personal command of guarding the railroads and waterfront in New England. He had the distinction of being the first major in the United States Guards, being appointed last January.

GEN. MANGIN INJURED BY FALL OFF HIS HORSE

Paris, Nov. 21.—What four years of active leadership in the war, always perilously close to the battle zones, could not do, a fall from a petulant full-blooded charger has done: General Mangin has been wounded.

The famous general, known as "the wrecker of German flanks," who first won renown in the 1914 battle of the Marne and turned the tide in many later decisive battles, had just entered Metz, on Monday, and was reviewing a brigade, when his thoroughbred, frightened by the music, started to buck and rear.

MASARYK SAILS TO TAKE HELM FOR CZECHS

President-elect of New Republic Expresses Gratitude for America's Aid

New York, Nov. 21.—Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, president-elect of the new republic of Czecho-Slovakia, today is en route with his suite to take the oath of office at Prague, capital of the new republic. Dr. Masaryk sailed yesterday on the Cunard liner Carmania.

Before leaving he issued the following statement:

"Before leaving this country I wish to say a word of special acknowledgment and gratitude to the press of America. It is the truly democratic spirit of the American press, which I learned to understand and appreciate. I am greatly indebted to it for the help so generously given me in my endeavor to bring before the American people the political problem of my own and the other small nations of mid-Europe.

"I do not feel entitled to address the whole American nation, but I trust to be permitted to say through the press that our nation will always be grateful to America for the warm and sincere sympathy with our cause. Our new republic will forever consider the great American commonwealth her 'elder sister.'

"May the friendship and the community of interest of the two democracies, in co-operation with the other democracies of the world, furnish a firm basis for the establishment of new order in a regenerated world."

Good News from Washington

Part of "BULL" DURHAM Tobacco Released to Civilians at Home to "Roll Their Own"

—With the little muslin sack of "BULL" DURHAM in the pockets of every one of our fighting men on land and sea—

—With good old "Bull" in the regular Army rations

—And with the future demands of the War Department abundantly cared for, part of "BULL" DURHAM Tobacco is offered again to the men at home who "roll their own".

And to these men we want to say, that in giving up so freely all your "Bull," when your Country asked for it for its fighting men, you did a human "bit." However small that little muslin sack may seem, you may have the satisfaction of knowing that your sack of "Bull" was meat and drink to some boy waiting or fighting at the front, and that your supply of "Bull" helped to make the distribution to our forces full and complete, and make it quickly. Now that Washington assures us that such distribution is a fact, you will welcome the "Makings" home again.

And with greater satisfaction and more pleasure than ever, you will, we know, with your own hands, roll a cigarette again for yourself—a cigarette machines can't imitate—the mildest, the most fragrant, the most economical cigarette in the world.

Are we wrong in thinking that you will be as proud as we are of your little muslin sack of "Bull"?

SLAIN BRIDE IN "TRIANGLE" WROTE OF DEATH

Newport Letter Told of "Greatest of Sins" and of Undying Love; Naval Inquiry Is On

Mrs. Gertrude Elma Stirmon, bride of a year who was shot and killed at Newport by her jealous husband, Chief Gunner's Mate Roy Stirmon, of the Naval Torpedo Station, knew that she was in peril of death through her love for Machinist's Mate L. J. Lawrence of the submarine F-3.

Stirmon killed himself after slaying his beautiful young wife.

The eternal triangle which formed the background for the dual tragedy is brought sharply forward by two letters found by the naval investigators at Newport.

One letter, written by Lawrence to Stirmon, admitted that Lawrence had done wrong in "making love to a shipmate's wife."

Lawrence wrote he was willing to suffer any penalty "For having loved that wonderful girl."

The other letter, found in Mrs. Stirmon's room, was without address or signature, but its nature shows plainly for whom it was meant. Certain sentences in it stand out with tragic significance, such as:

"Oh, God, but I love you, my darling boy, better than life itself.

"Question is, should I let Roy kill me as he wishes to do?

"He says mine is the greatest of all sins."

Thus it is made evident that Mrs. Stirmon knew that her love for Lawrence might be her death sentence.

BRIDE A COLLEGE GRADUATE.

The Stirmons were married at Seattle on June 5, 1917. She was a graduate of St. Benedictine College at Colton, Wash., and was twenty-four years old, three years her husband's junior.

The letter from Machinist's Mate Lawrence to Stirmon, dated October 23, was as follows:

"Mr. Stirmon—Your letter of the 16th inst. reached me day before yesterday. It was not much of a surprise. I had been thinking of writing to you for sometime. I am rather glad that you have written.

"As to my feeling for Joan, it is not a passing fancy as you suggest. She means more than all else to me. No one realizes better than I that I have no right to her. I know that I've fallen a lot short of a white man's standard in making love to a shipmate's wife.

LEAVES DECISION TO JOAN.

"I know it was not an honorable thing to do, but it's done. I'm entirely to blame for this situation and if there is any penalty for having loved that wonderful girl, I'm more than willing to be the one to suffer.

"I shall write to Joan in a few days—maybe today. I hardly know. But she will have to be the one to decide. Her happiness means more to me than anything else, and it is largely in your hands.

"Be good to her, Stirmon. Sincerely, L. J. Lawrence.

"M. M. C., U. S. S. F-3."

The other letter, found in Mrs. Stirmon's room, reads:

"O, God, but I love you, my darling boy, better than life itself. I promised not to write to you, but my love is around you.

"Question is, should I let Roy kill me as he wishes to do? If I thought it would be better for you I should not hesitate, but death could not take my love from you or yours from me. But I am afraid I'd be hurting you instead, and in that case I should have to do something that seems cowardly to me.

"I should let him know as I promised, only I should write and tell him and disappear, instead of staying and facing the music, which would be to let him shoot me. I can't see why my death is necessary, though, for that matter.

GREATEST OF SINS.

"It's wanton killing to me. He said he felt as if there was a heaven here and would go to it when he killed me. But he did not think I should, perhaps. I should not, though. I hardly agree with him as to his being sure.

"He says mine is the greatest of all sins. The more unforgiveable as I loved you instead of him."

The Stirmons lived apart in Newport. Stirmon took his wife to a theatre at night, escorted her to her boarding house, left her there, returned at midnight and killed her and himself.

WELCOME FOR DOUGHBOYS IN LUXEMBURG

more truckage in a single day than in ordinary stag of motion hauled out down in a month.

The doughboys were cheered and clapped as they marched into the city of Luxemburg. Great crowds stood in the public square watching the Americans pass by. There were great columns of infantry, followed by rolling trains of artillery and machine gun units. There was an endless procession of motor trucks and wagons. They poured into the city from the west and rumbled out to the east.

From daybreak until dark this procession passed steadily, with the motor trucks and wagons guided by calm young men in olive drab. Throughout the darkness of last night the city echoed to the steady rumble of American army trucks as they pressed eastward for supplies for the advanced units of the army of occupation.

A German newspaper in Luxemburg said that the people at home (in America) must swell with pride at the well disciplined and imposing array of the American army of occupation in Luxemburg.

The people of Luxemburg, long used to war and soldiers, were deeply impressed by the youth, vitality and soldiery appearance of the Americans. The doughboys were hailed as real soldiers.

American army officers rode with the staff of Marshal Petain when Metz was entered. Other allied nations were represented as well. The sprinkling of Yanks in the crowd was hailed with shouts of "long live America."

The German element of the city was silent and solemn, but they were in the minority. The whole place was aflame with the French tri-color and there were plenty of American flags, too.

As the French and allied troops entered the fortress the sky was thick with airplanes.

During the procession through the city, Lieutenant Bonen Verdurez, a French ace, with nearly a score of victories to his credit, flew so low that he struck a telegraph pole and the machine plunged into the crowd. The airman was fatally hurt and several spectators were killed.

A mighty ovation was given to the French troops who had arrived in Metz directly from the battlefield. In their muddy, faded, horizon blue uniforms the poilus swung into the city with sprigs of green stuck into the muzzles of their rifles amidst a great deal of clatter and dust kicked up by the heavy trains of artillery.

Armored cars, still bearing the scars of battle, entered the city along with the infantry. Cannon boomed and church bells rang as the deliverers passed through Metz. Children took a prominent part in the celebration and there were services of thanksgiving in the churches. The holiday spirit is rampant throughout all of Lorraine.

A feature in Metz was the pulling down of a statue of William the First, grandfather of the ex-Kaiser. It stood in a park in the centre of the city. French soldiers tied chains to the monument and attached them to horses. William soon toppled over, his helmeted head and mailed fist plunging into the earth, where they were allowed to stay.

We counted to at least six styles in pink crepe de Chine bodices with lace tops on the $1 table. Sketched is one with points of filet pattern lace, edged with Valenciennes. But you may prefer the straight-across top with filet pattern lace inserted and little ribbon rosebuds. Or one with lace straps, or French knots, or strong, wide, Cluny pattern lace.

Still others, including a tailored one, part crepe de Chine, part satin, with the narrowest lace edge, ribbon-run.

To make them look real Chinese they have black grounds, of course. The style is a pretty three-sectional one, with row after row of shirring. Lengths 34, 36 and 38, $2.

Flannelette kimonos in surprisingly pretty patterns

For the most part they are floral. It is the combinations of colors that makes them so good-looking—blue with light pink, lavender with deep rose, gray with lavender, wistaria with gray for instance. Sizes 36 to 46, $2.50.

Picot-edged Van Dyke ruffles trim pink batiste bloomers

Usually one is glad to get the plainer, ordinary, ruff less kind for as little as 75c. These have pretty pointed ruffles and elastic at waist and knees.

SAYS KELLEY GIRL SCOFFED AT WESTON

sprang a surprise when he put his client on the stand near the close of the morning session for direct examination following his cross-examination yesterday by Attorney Harvey Pratt, Miss White's counsel. Weston's testimony was a sweeping denial that he had ever been engaged to Miss White or expressed any affection for her.

STARTLED COURTROOM.

A veiled allusion to an impulse on the part of Miss Andrews to kill Miss White startled the courtroom when it was read in a letter written by Miss White to Miss Andrews, in which the writer said, referring to Weston, "I am done with him once and for all."

"You need not worry about my visiting you, Miss Andrews," the letter continued, "for from the tone of your letter to Mr. Weston regarding your prayer for strength to refrain from killing me, I would not care to."

In this letter, Miss White said she was "glad to learn that your engagement to Weston still exists."

Reading of the "Dear Greeley" letter which Miss White wrote Weston on learning of his marriage, testimony that Miss Kelley referred to Weston before their marriage as "an old man," and a clash between counsel over the production of certain letters in evidence, were features of the morning session.

Daniel J. Daley, counsel for Weston, produced letters written by Miss White to Weston and emphasized the fact that they contained no endearing terms.

CLASH OF COUNSEL.

Attorney Pratt leaped to his feet and demanded that a letter written by Miss White on learning of Weston's elopement be produced. This letter was read in court, while Miss White wept.

It was in part as follows:

Dear Greeley:

For Heaven's sake, tell me if what I hear is true. When did it happen? Greeley, you certainly have handed it to me in great shape if this report is true. I suppose I am nothing but a has-been to you now, but I have surely gone through more for you than most girls would, because you always said everything would come out all right in time, only be patient. I have, and this is the result. The last night you were down here (referring to her former home at Winthrop), a few weeks ago, you were just the same as ever, wanting to know when you would see me again. Knowing what has been between us, surely you are man enough to tell me or write to me if this is true.

"There is only one thing, Greeley, that I ask of you, and I hope you will grant it. Please send me or deliver to me that picture you have of me. You don't want it now and I am very sure your wife doesn't. I don't care if it comes smashed or how it gets here, but please let me have it."

In this letter the writer also says: "If it is true, and she truly loves you, I wish you both all the happiness in the world," and adds, "I am certainly getting my punishment for what I have done, but I've learned a lesson, even thought it is a hard one."

ASKS FOR PICTURE.

In a postscript she urges again the return of the photograph. The letter was signed, "Good night and best wishes, M. E. W."

A good deal of the testimony in cross-examination of Miss White tended to show that she had gone driving with Weston and Miss Kelley a number of times in a two-passenger roadster; that they had visited Nahant, Marlboro and other places; that Miss White had finally protested against the arrangement, which ended the affair, and that Weston had replied, referring to Miss Kelley: "She's nothing but a kid and likes to ride."

On one of these occasions, Miss White testified, they stopped at a Boston hotel for luncheon, and Miss White asked Miss Kelley to go to the dressing room with her, and attempted while there to come to an understanding. Miss White testified that she said to Miss Kelley, "If you have any intention of running around with him you are a fooling girl. I have been going around with him for years, and everybody knows it."

Miss Kelley replied, according to witness: "I should worry about you. What do I want with an old man like him?"

This was in September, 1916. The following February Miss Kelley and Weston eloped.

MET MISS ANDREWS.

Miss White further testified to a meeting she had with Miss Andrews, the sixty-five-year-old women of means who claimed Weston as her fiance. The affair with Miss Andrews shortly preceded Weston's marriage. Miss Andrews questioned Miss White, witness said, as to her relations with Weston, and on Miss White's telling her that an engagement had long existed, offered to give up Weston and sacrifice all she had to make them happy.

In cross-examination, during which Attorney Daley read a letter from Miss White to Weston, he questioned her as to the absence of endearing terms.

Q.—What is the absence of such terms due to? A.—To feminine temper.

In the wrangle between counsel over the production of letters Attorney Daley insisted that he had shown all the letters he had. Attorney Pratt retorted: "You may have, but your client hasn't."

Weston, under direct examination, denied that he had induced Miss White to visit his lawyer for the purpose of saying any engagement between them and at another point, admitted that on a certain motor trip to Northboro he "had a pretty good love on."

Ex-Crown Prince to Be Exiled Upon Dutch Island

Amsterdam, Nov. 21.—Friedrich Wilhelm Hohenzollern, ex-Crown Prince of Germany, will be interned by Holland on the island of Wieringen, in the northern Netherlands, according to the Handelsblad.

The island of Wieringen, about five miles long by two miles wide, is in the Zuyder Zee, two miles off the east coast of the Netherlands province of North Holland. It is thirty-five miles north of Amsterdam. The Zuyder Zee is a long arm of the North Sea which penetrates deeply into the Netherlands, with North Holland province and the chain of West Friesian Islands as its western boundaries. It is practically an inland sea.

WITHDRAW 26TH FROM BATTLE FRONT

New England Men Sent to Rest Camp; May Soon Be on Way Home

Council attended by Americans was held in Versailles, Colonel House attended. It rejected point one of the delegates the concrete message to President Wilson: 'Germany will begin her great offensive in the Spring. We will be seriously outnumbered. They will surely attack in force. We will have to retire, giving rearguard action as best we can, until Paris is threatened. Our only hope is the arrival of the American forces. Unless we can have, by the middle of July, 500,000 trained American men, Paris is lost. It's a race between Berlin and America.'

"On March 21, the attack began. In February, we had sent 45,000 men. In April 100,000. At the end of April, they said, in despairing tones, 'We must have 500,000 men or we are lost.' We sent 200,000 more.

OUTNUMBERED BY FOE.

"In the first offensive the allies were driven back forty-three kilometers. Germany then struck at the east, and the French had to give way. They then struck at the middle, and both England and France were driven back. In two places they crossed the Marne.

"The world depended upon America, an unknown force. We hadn't tried to fight since the Civil War. We had no officers. The Spanish War had been a joke. What could we accomplish? The straits were desperate. It was a life-and-death race. France, in her mind, had given up Paris. Would France have to surrender? Clemenceau said 'No.' Foch said 'No;' we will turn the tide if the American soldier is as good as he ought to be.'

"Germany had 210 divisions, the allies 187. They were being driven back three and four miles a day. The Spanish influenza delayed the Germans some, but July 15 they moved forward again. Paris was but thirty-three miles away.

"The American generals said 'We can hold.' The French generals were doubtful. 'We haven't held for three weeks,' they said. 'Our men are tired and worn out.' But the American generals carried the day. 'Go ahead,' said the French. 'We'll try.'

GERMANS HELD, THEN DRIVEN.

"At 2 a. m., on July 15, the Marines of the Second were thrown in, then the Second, the First and the Twenty-sixth. We had 60 per cent. casualties in forty-eight hours. Then another division came up. On the fourth day the German line showed signs of weakening.

"The American generals said, 'Let's try and throw them back.' Our troops went in. It was the most ghastly battle in the world's history. Slowly the German hordes began to give. Eight days after, the Germans were twelve miles back. A French general said that their best shock troops, the Moroccans, who fight with daggers, were chargrined because they couldn't keep up with the advancing American soldiers.

"It was the turning point in history. France was saved. The world was saved."

Mr. Walcott said that France loves the American boys with an adoration that is sublime. He told two stories that were told to him by a French general:

MADE A DEFFERENCE.

A German general sitting in the drinking room of a cafe was warned by a courier from headquarters to vacate because "They're coming." He refused. Another courier arrived. "They're coming, the Americans." "Mein Gott, I thought you meant the French," said the general, and he retired.

American troops were brigaded with the French to create the impression among the Germans that the Americans were all the entire line.

"There is a feeling in France," said Mr. Walcott, "that wherever an American is, there the Germans cannot be and never will be."

He told some incidents to illustrate the valor and undaunted courage of the doughboys and then delivered this message to the people of New England:

"The movement now in Europe may cost more in bloodshed than the war. A tidal wave is sweeping the continent. Its effect on civilization Europe is powerless to stop it. Forty millilon people are rent with anarchy. Its leadership is merciless and as menacing as that of Prussianism.

"The pestilence blowing from Russia may sweep through Poland, Germany and the other poverty-stricken nations. An English labor leader recently told me that 'autocracy must go, even if a revolution is necessary.'

FAMINE IS REAL PERIL.

"Miss Choate, who remained in England after the death of her father, said to me, 'I feel a revolution brewing in England.' Who can tell but that it may come to New York, Pittsburgh and the other big cities?

"Famine is the mother of anarchy. Food is the antidote. Our duty is to supply the devastated people with money and food. Their factories are gone, their livestock destroyed. We must give hope to the poor, starving, struggling people.

"The world is short of meats and fats, but we have enough cereals in storage here and in South America and Canada to give those people better than the war-rations of England.

"Conserve. We can't go back in the old rations waste. We owe the world a debt—to show the world what a democracy can do."

SAYS U. S. MUST INCREASE ITS IMPORTS

Liquidation of Huge Credits to Allies Imperative, Declares Colver

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 21.—A reconstruction program not looking toward the payment or liquidation of America's huge credits to the allied nations will mark the United States for utter destruction.

This warning was sounded here today by William B. Colver, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, in an address before the tenth annual convention of the American Specialty Manufacturers' Association.

Commissioner Colver pointed out that if America had debts in foreign countries it would be possible to temporarily maintain a balance of trade, and enable this country to export food and raw materials in excess of the value of our imports. But, Mr. Colver continued, a nation cannot be a creditor nation and an exporting nation without taking goods in exchange for its exports and eventually liquidating its credit balances through surplus imports, except that it build up abroad a constantly increasing credit balance.

PROFITABLE FOR ALL.

Therefore, in exchange for the exportation of those things of which we have the greatest surplus and can produce most cheaply, America must take in exchange from every quarter of the globe importations of those things which we most desire and cannot advantageously produce. Such a provision must be specifically contained in our reconstruction program, he said.

This, with a fair field in the world's markets for competitive goods, Mr. Colver continued, would make each transaction profitable to both buyer and seller. It would permit the gradual liquidation of such part of the money debt that the world owes the United States as may not be usefully employed as international credits and working capital for the facilitation of America's world commerce.

"To leave the present credit balances of the United States unliquidated," Mr. Colver said, "and to add to their huge total by an excess of exports over imports, would be to build up a world-wide commercial empire.

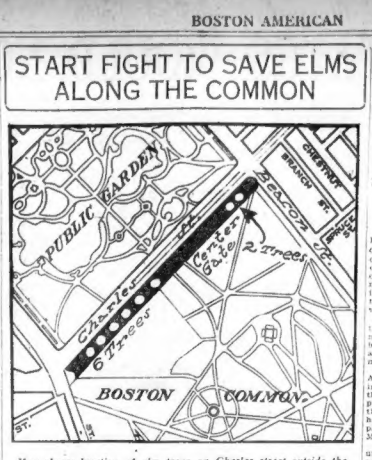
LESSON FROM GERMANY.

"Commercial imperialism was what Germany sought and upon this foundation was built the war machine of Germany. The pan-Germanic program for world-wide economic and financial domination was Germany's death warrant. Being unable to feed the monster by peaceful trade expansion she was compelled to invoke war. A reconstruction program for the United States looking to the building on top of its credit balances unending mountains of international credits, will tend, not only to make the United States, the most hated nation in the world, but to mark her for destruction. It means commercial imperialism."

U. S. TROOPS IN NEAR CLASH WITH MEXICANS

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 21.—Turmoil is still brewing today on the Mexican side of the border as the result of a near clash between Mexican and American troops when Immigration Inspector Earl Riggs seized Rafael Garcia last night. Garcia was wanted on the American side. Riggs handcuffed him and stood off Mexicans with his pistol while the American guardsmen dragged the prisoner on to undisputed American soil. The trouble arose over the fact that the exact imaginary boundary line on the international bridge is a matter of dispute.

START FIGHT TO SAVE ELMS ALONG THE COMMON



Map shows location of elm trees on Charles street outside the Common that it was proposed to cut down for auto parking space.

The eight lofty elms on Charles street outside of Boston Common, which had been doomed to the axe to furnish parking space for autos may be saved.

Stirred by general protests from all parts of the city the Boston street commissioners today investigated the matter, with a view to saving the stately old shade trees if possible.

According to John J. O'Callaghan, secretary and member of the street commission, it has not been definitely decided to cut down the trees. They are not on the Common, but on city property, along the sidewalk on Charles street. According to the commissioner they are the only trees on the Common side of Charles street. Six are at the left of the centre gate, facing the Public Garden and two on the right.

Myron E. Pierce of the Boston Common Society, which will undoubtedly oppose the cutting down of the trees if the commissioners decide to do so, has suggested a plan of building curbing about the bases of the elms and in that manner permit parking space.

It was estimated by those who proposed the plan originally that 150 cars could be parked there, and accordingly help relieve traffic congestion in the downtown section.

DANVERS MAN HELD FOR DEATH BY TROLLEY

M. Robinson of Danvers was arraigned in the Danvers Court today charged with manslaughter. The police allege that Robinson was the driver of the car which last night struck Jacob Whipple, an aged resident of Danvers. Whipple was thrown directly into the path of a moving electric car and instantly killed. Robinson was held in $2,000 for a hearing on Wednesday.

DRAFT DODGERS KILL SOLDIER IN BATTLE

Montreal, Nov. 21.—Draft evaders who murdered Sheriff James McKay at Steep Creek, Saskatchewan, have constructed trenches and dugouts from which they are firing upon officials, trying to arrest them, said a dispatch to this city today. A posse of soldiers was sent out and the evaders opened fire, killing Charles Morcastley.

SEEK 'L' UNION AID TO FIGHT INFLUENZA

Mayor's Committee May Ask New Hour Schedule If Condition Doesn't Improve

Following a conference between Health Commissioner Woodward and Corporation Counsel Whiteside, who is chairman of Mayor Peter's special committee to investigate unsanitary conditions on the Elevated, it was announced that if the situation regarding influenza did not continue to improve, the committee would get in touch with the Carmen's Union.

If this comes to pass it is likely that the union will be asked to allow its members to work nine in fourteen hours instead of nine in eleven hours as at present, so that more carmen may work in the rush hours.

President Higgins and Business Agent Timmins of the Carmen's Union, in a statement say: "We will meet the mayor's committee at any time or place and willingly discuss any question that will improve the public health or the service which the company renders, and we have so notified Mr. Whiteside."

The statement also says that the union is not willing to reduce the schedule because it is not necessary. Health Commissioner Woodward believes the present contagion is only a "flare up" caused by the recent 4-hour peace celebration.

FALSE 'BOSTON' STAMPS UPON 'ARMY SHOES'

U. S. Attorney Gives Superintendent Crowley Evidence of Frauds to Investigate

Boston manufacturers may be involved in the prosecution of frauds in the sale of so-called army shoes, according to evidence submitted today to Superintendent of Police Crowley by Assistant United States Attorney Daniel A. Shea.

It was shown that the shoes, which purported to have been made under direction of the Quartermaster's Department, bore bogus stamps. In one case brought to the attention of the police, the words "Boston Depot" and the name of "Inspector O'Brien" were stamped on the shoes.

Both stamps, inspectors learned, were false. There is no such inspector as "O'Brien." According to Attorney Shea, manufacturers as well as jobbers were in league with the plan to put inferior shoes on the market as government products.

The Department of Justice has turned the case over to the local police, and it is expected that arrests will be made and prosecutions follow in the lower courts.

WHY GERMANS THOUGHT THE UNITED STATES WOULD NOT FIGHT

MORGENTHAU TALKS WITH BERLIN OFFICIALS

By HENRY MORGENTHAU,
Former U. S. Ambassador to Turkey.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Von Jagow, Zimmerman and German-Americans.

One train drew into Berlin station on the evening of February 2, 1916. The date is worth mentioning, for that marked an important crisis in German-American relations. Among the first man I met was my old friend and colleague, Ambassador James W. Gerard. Mr. Gerard told me that he was packing up and expected to leave Berlin at any moment, for he believed that a break between Germany and the United States was a matter only of days, perhaps of hours. At that time Germany and the United States were discussing the settlement of the Lusitania outrage.

"I can do nothing more," said Mr. Gerard. "I want to have you talk with Zimmerman and Von Jagow, and perhaps you can give them a new point of view."

I soon discovered, from my many callers, that the atmosphere in Berlin was tense and exceedingly anti-American.

Mr. Gerard took me to the Foreign Office and we spent more than an hour there with Von Jagow. Von Jagow was a small, slight man of nervous disposition. He lighted cigarette after cigarette during our interview.

"It seems to us a shame that Mr. Lansing should insist that we declare the Lusitania sinking illegal," Von Jagow began. "He is acting like a technical lawyer."

"If you want the real truth," I replied, "I do not think that the United States is particular or technical about the precise terms that you use. But you must give definite assurances that you are sorry for the act, say that you regard it as an improper one, and that it will not occur again. Unless you do this, the United States will not be satisfied."

"We cannot do that," he answered. "Public opinion in Germany would not permit it. If we should make a declaration such as you outline, the present cabinet would fall."

"But I thought that you had public opinion here well under control," I answered. "It may take a little time, but certainly you can change public sentiment so that it would approve such a settlement."

NEWSPAPERS CONTROLLED.

"As far as the newspapers are concerned," said Von Jagow, "that is true. We can absolutely control them. However, that will take some time. But there are members of Parliament whom we can control and they would make so much trouble that we would all have to resign."

"Yet it seems to me," I replied, "that you could get these members together, explain to them the necessity of keeping the United States out of the war, and that they would be convinced. The trouble is that you Germans don't understand conditions in my country. You don't think that the United States will fight. You don't understand President Wilson. You think that he is an idealist and a peace man, and that under no circumstances will he take up arms. You are making the greatest and most costly mistake that any nation could make. The President has two sides to his nature. Do not forget that he has Scotch-Irish blood in him."

Von Jagow said that I had given him a new impression of the President. But he still had one more reason to believe that the United States would not go to war.

"How about the German-Americans?" he asked.

"I can tell you all about them," I answered, "because I am one of them myself. I was born in Germany and spent the first nine years of my life here. I love always loved many things German, such as its music and its literature. But my parents left this country because they were dissatisfied and unhappy here. The United States gave us a friendly reception and a home, and made us prosperous and happy. We have only loyalty and one love, and that is for the United States."

GERMAN-AMERICANS LOYAL.

"But I am told," said Von Jagow, "that there will be an insurrection of German-Americans if your country makes war on us."

"Dismiss any such idea from your mind," I replied. "The first one who attempts it will be punished so promptly and so drastically that such a movement will not go far. And I think that the loyal German-Americans themselves will be the first to administer such punishment."

"We wish to avoid a rupture with the United States," said Von Jagow. "But we must have time to change public sentiment here. There are two parties here, holding diametrically opposed views on submarine warfare. One believes in pushing it to the limit, irrespective of consequences to the United States or any other power. The present Cabinet takes the contrary view; we wish to meet the contentions of your President. But the militaristic faction is pushing us hard. They will force us out of office if we declare the Lusitania sinking illegal or improper. I think that President Wilson should understand this.

"Do you wish Washington understand," I asked, "that your tenure of office depends on your not making this declaration?"

"We certainly do," replied Von Jagow. "I wish that you would telegraph Washington to that effect.

He expressed himself as amazed at my description of President Wilson and his willingness to fight. "We regard him," said Von Jagow, "as absolutely a man of peace. Nor do we believe that the American people will fight. They are far from the scene of action, and, what, after all, have they to fight for? Your material interests are not affected."

"But there is one thing that we will fight for," I replied, "and that is moral principle. It is quite apparent that you do not understand the American spirit."

I made the usual explanation that we regarded our problem with each nation as a distinct matter and could not make our treatment of Germany in any way conditional on our treatment of England.

SPANK GERMANS FIRST.

"Oh, yes," replied Von Jagow rather plaintively. "It reminds me of two boys playing in a yard. One is to be punished first and the other is waiting for his turn. Wilson is going to spank the German boy first, and after he gets through, then he proposes to take up England."

"However," he concluded, "I wish you would cable the President that you have gone over the matter with me and now understand the German point of view. Won't you please ask him to do nothing until you have reached the other side and explained the whole thing personally?"

He made this promise and cabled immediately.

At 4:30 o'clock I had an engagement to take tea with the Director of the Orient Bank and his wife. I had been there only a few minutes when Zimmermann was announced. He was a different kind of man from Von Jagow. He impressed me as much stronger, mentally and physically. He told me how splendidly the Jews had behaved in Germany during the war and how deeply under obligations the Germans felt to them.

"After the war," he said, "they are going to be much better treated in Germany than they have been."

Like most Germans, he regarded the Germanic elements in our population as almost a part of Germany.

"Are you sure that the mass of German-Americans would be loyal to the United States in case of war?" he asked. "Aren't their feelings for the Fatherland really dominant?"

NOT PEOPLE APART.

"You evidently regard those German-Americans as a distinct part of the population," I replied, "living apart from the rest of the people and having very little to do with American life as a whole. You could not make a greater mistake. You can purchase a few here and there, who will make a big noise and shout for Germany, but I am talking about the millions of Americans of German ancestry. These people regard themselves as Americans and nothing else. If the United States and Germany go to war, you will not only be surprised at the loyalty of our German people, but the whole world will be. Another point, if the United States goes in, we shall fight to the end and it will be a very long and a very determined struggle."

I have no reason to be ashamed of either of these prophecies. I sometimes wonder what Zimmermann now thinks of my statements.

The matter of submarine came up again.

"We have voluntarily interned our navy," said Zimmermann. "We can do nothing at sea except with our submarines. It seems to me that the United States is making a serious mistake in so strongly opposing the submarine. You have a long coast line and you may need the U-boat yourself some day. Suppose one of the European powers, or particularly Japan, should attack you. You could use the submarine to good purpose then. Besides, if you insist on this proposed declaration in the Lusitania matter, you will simply force our government into the hands of the Tirpitz party."

I now saw that Waugenheim had really represented the attitude of official Germany.

In a few days we had taken the steamer at Copenhagen, and on February 22 I found myself once more sailing into New York harbor.

THE END.

BAR BULKY CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR OVERSEAS

The Governor's office has received from Postmaster-General Burleson and Major-General George W. Goethals replies to his telegrams urging that larger Christmas packages may be sent to the boys in France. They are as follows:

"Matter of removing restrictions on Christmas mail for our soldiers abroad subject to decision of War Department, to which your telegram, together with others, has been referred. Postoffice Department will willingly assume added burden."—Burleson.

"I beg to advise that your telegram of November 14 to the Secretary of War on the subject of Christmas packages for our soldiers in France has been referred to this office. The subject of increasing the size of the parcel was considered after the armistice was signed, and it was necessary to conclude that the circumstances do not permit it. It is appreciated how desirable it would be to have our troops receive a larger package and it is only regretted that it can not be done."—George W. Goethals."

RED CROSS TO USE PARCEL COUPONS

Special Christmas Slips to Replace Those Lost, Destroyed or Unreceived from Soldiers

Beginning today the Committee on Christmas Parcels of the Boston Metropolitan Chapter, American Red Cross, will issue special Christmas parcel coupons to nearest relatives of soldiers overseas who have not received official coupons or who have lost or destroyed their coupons.

The War Department authorized the American Red Cross to distribute coupons under certain restrictions.

The Red Cross is the sole medium through which parcels may be sent abroad. One parcel may be sent to each soldier and returned to the Red Cross for inspection, wrapping and mailing.

The final day on which Christmas parcels may be mailed to soldiers and war workers abroad has been extended to November 30.

The parcel coupons will be issued at the headquarters, No. 211 Columbus avenue, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., and at the branch Christmas parcel stations, only by special arrangement.

The headquarters are open week days from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., but coupons will not be issued after 5 p. m. and on Sundays from noon to 5 p. m.

Having secured a coupon, however, the holder may obtain a carton and return the carton for inspection and mailing at a branch station.

The nearest relative of the soldier to whom the parcel is to be sent, and must sign a statement substantially as follows:

"The undersigned hereby makes application to forward to——Organization —— American Expeditionary Forces, a Christmas package. The undersigned hereby declares that he or she is the nearest living relative in the United States of the proposed recipient, that he or she has not received a label from abroad and that should such label be received it would not be used, and that to the best of his or her knowledge and belief only one Christmas parcel will be sent the proposed recipient."

Every effort will be made to see that only one parcel be sent each man. A record will be kept of every coupon issued.

SUE McMANAMY DREADS PART OF VAMPIRE

And You Can Hardly Blame Her for Those Hisses Actually Make Her Cry

By FRED J. McISAAC.

When a girl with raven hair and big dark eyes and ripe red lips gets a husband, she doesn't have to thank the fellows who write plays for their kind assistance.

She has to overcome a terrible handicap due to the determination of authors from the time of Sophocles down to impress people that a brunette is passionate, unprincipled and murderously inclined, while a blonde is the personification of sweetness, goodness and angelicness.

What wonder is it that so many brunettes give up the struggle and buy a bottle of peroxide.

Ever since this theatrical type known as the "vampire" was foisted upon an unwitting world via the movies, the lot of a striking brunette has been more hard to undergo.

Now the truth is that the average brunette is more tender-hearted than the average blonde, and for downright cruelty and lack of principles that pink and white type with the big blue eyes and the golden hair beats them all. There are far more blonde vampires in the divorce courts than there are brunettes, while the brunettes predominate in the vampire business only upon the stage.

LAST MINUTE SAVES HER.

All this is to introduce to your attention Miss Sue McManamy, who is a typical stage vampire and horrifies respectable families all through "Business Before Pleasure" until near the end when she displays a noble streak.

If it wasn't for that bit of generosity and nobility about one minute before the curtain fell Mr. Al Woods would have had to get another vampire. Miss McManamy wouldn't play it. She told me so herself.

I have interviewed quite a number of brunette adventuresses, vampires and home wreckers, and they all run true to type behind the scenes. They are invariably ingenuous, good-hearted, free from vices and dissipations, usually supporting invalid mothers or decrepid fathers, and all hoping against hope that some day the authors will turn around and begin to permit the hero to marry the brunette instead of the anaemic blonde.

That particularly opulent and seductive vamp of "Business Before Pleasure" almost cried when she told me how she hated such roles.

"I wish the managers wouldn't persist in assigning me to play naughty ladies," said Miss McManamy. "In 'Lombardy Limited' I had to play the sweetheart of Lombardi who was untrue to him, a very vampish type. In 'An American Jew' I was cast for a German spy. When I first was asked to do the vampire in 'Business Before Pleasure,' I refused absolutely.

"NEVER AGAIN," SAYS SUE.

"Finally I was shown that the girl in this play was very decent and saved the firm of Potash and Perlmutter in the last act. That's why I consented to play it.

"When I was in stock it was always the same thing. I had to be the heavy woman. In stock they kiss you, and many a time I would go to my dressing room and cry my make-up off because I got thoroughly kissed."

"Why, I supposed a heavy liked to hear kisses. That they were a compliment to his skill as an actor."

"Well, I didn't like 'em. They used to cut me all up."

Just think of that, you folks out in Somerville. When you kissed the vile adventuress in the stock company two seasons ago poor little Sue used to creep to her dressing room and ruin a pair of perfectly good red cheeks with her salt tears.

"What would you like to do?"

"Emotional work. I feel sure that I could do such a role, but somehow they always give them to blondes."

"Why don't you die your hair?"

Miss McManamy shuddered.

"I will before I play any more vampires," she declared.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists

PLANS TO HONOR 26TH MOVING STEADILY

Started by the Boston AMERICAN, which suggested to the chief executive of every city and town of Massachusetts a fitting celebration to welcome home the men of the gallant 26th Division, plans for a State-wide welcoming demonstration are going steadily forward. Everyone is set and marking time until such a time as the exact date of the men's arrival is learned.

The day the heroes of the Twenty-sixth get back home the people of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will be ready to receive them. There's no doubt about it. Those boys in khaki smothered the Germans in all kinds of fighting, but when they run the gauntlet of their friends here at home they will know what a real, strenuous time is.

Every city, every town, every crossroad village is planning a welcome for them that will take their very breath away. Parades, speeches, fireworks, eats and smokes, slaps on the back, hugs and kisses (from the fair sex) and everything on the calendar is awaiting the home-coming of our fighters.

The AMERICAN has asked the executives of every city and town in the State to tell what their plans are to welcome the "26th." Replies have been received from scores of cities and towns.

"Rowe is a small town," wires G. R. Hartshorn, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, "but it wishes to do everything agreed upon to greet the return of her soldiers in conjunction with other towns that may seem fitting. When the time arrives and plans are formulated kindly count us in."

M. J. Kennedy, of Bellingham Junction, wires: "We are planning to welcome the boys home." This is a modest statement, but you can bet that Bellingham Junction will go the limit on anything proposed.

The town of Framingham is a town big enough to be a city. Thousands of soldiers have been encamped within the town limits in the past two years. It has sent scores of boys to the front. There is no question but that Framingham will outdo itself in its welcome to the returned heroes. Theo. T. Rice, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, writes the AMERICAN that "When the boys come home all Framingham will turn out and receive them in proper and fitting manner, with appropriate ceremonies and social functions."

The boys will have a welcome in Framingham all right.

GOV. GRAHAM TO FACE TRIAL IN MARCH

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 21.—Governor Horace F. Graham, under indictment for alleged larceny and embezzlement from the State during his term as Auditor, from 1902 to 1917, will face trial in March.

R. E. Brown, counsel for the Governor, asked for this date. Attorney-General Herbert G. Barker stated he would be ready to go to trial with the case at an earlier date, but nevertheless consented to the long continuance.

The accused State executive gave bonds for $5,000 when arraigned in the Washington County Court.

The indictments, secretly returned by the grand jury last Monday, include 132 counts of alleged larceny and six of alleged embezzlement.

The Governor was not placed under arrest, but went to court voluntarily accompanied by counsel. He had no comment to make regarding the case, but in a statement to the public on August 12, when the alleged shortage of $5 amounts was brought to his attention, he asked that judgment be suspended, saying that while he had been wrong in the matter of handling his salary and official expenses as auditor, he had not previously been aware that any of his vouchers were missing.

"The books in the auditor's office," he continued, "always showed just how my salary and expense accounts stand. I have never made any concealment in that respect, and the books have always been open to the inspection of the proper officials."

Frank M. Corry, president of the Whitmore & Morse Granite Company, and H. W. Varnum of the firm of Boutwell, Milne & Varnum, of Montpelier, quarry owners, furnished surety for Governor Graham.

URGES FEDERAL OWNERSHIP OF SHIPPING

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 21.—A resolution seeking to pledge the Senate to co-operate with the government in the ownership of all interstate railroads, telegraphs and telephones, was introduced in the Senate this afternoon by senator Lewis of Illinois.

"The resolution also would place the senate on record as favoring government ownership of "All natural agencies for the production of fuel," and would express the Senate's opinion that the government should construct and own mines and agencies of water transportation necessary for the merchant marine.

"The matter of operation of these agencies," the resolution continues, "as a special privilege to be regulated and adjusted in each instance according to the circumstances and circumstances surrounding the operation of that particular agency, or the demand for the service—be it railroad, steamship, telephone, telegraph, coal or oil."

LOVE'S DREAM BY LOTHARIO OF 86 IS OVER

New York, Nov. 21.—A girl of 25 and a man of 86 attempted to prove to the world that romance still lives, that knighthood and chivalry still are in bloom. The girl was Gladys Brown Toovey, of New York. The man was Samuel H. Rundle, millionaire hat manufacturer and bank president of Danbury, Ct.

After a telephone courtship lasting but a week, the pair were married on October 16. The romance was blighted in just twenty-four hours. Romance was dead; knighthood and chivalry were in mourning.

Yesterday, one month after her marriage, Mrs. Rundle brought suit against her elderly husband for divorce. She seeks $250,000 for alleged intolerable cruelty on divers days between October 16 and November 16. To provide for her immediate needs while the abominable courts are thrashing out her love affairs, Mrs. Rundle attached property of her husband valued at about $40,000.

The bridegroom was amazed last night when told the ground on which his wife was bringing suit. He said feebly over the telephone:

"It is not true. Mrs. Rundle was treated affectionately and kindly, and she has no cause to make complaint."

In his denial, Mr. Rundle was joined by his housekeeper and by his attorney, Moss Ives of Danbury, who said:

"There is absolutely no truth in Mrs. Rundle's charges and we shall contest the case to the limit."

Mrs. Rundle is staying with her mother, Mrs. Austin Brown, at No. 619 West One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street. When seen last night Mrs. Brown stated that there was no truth in the report that her daughter was seeking a divorce from her husband. Even the statement that the complaint had been filed failed to shake her continued denials.

Picture of Armistice Conference Painted by Lavery

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 21.—(By British Wireless Press.)—Sir John Lavery of the Royal Academy, famous painter of naval subjects, has returned to London from a visit to the Grand Fleet, where he was commissioned by the admiralty to paint a picture of the historic scene in the cabin of Admiral Sir David Beatty's flagship while the German and British were arranging the final terms of the armistice.

Sir John was present in the forecabin of the Queen Elizabeth throughout the whole ceremony and struck off a finished study of the scenes which will serve as the basis for a big canvas. This will be completed during the next few months. The first picture was painted in an almost artificial light owing to the fog. There are fifteen figures in the scene, including the five German delegates.

In addition there are Sir David Beatty, Admiral Sir Charles Madden, Admiral Brock, Vice-Admiral Sir Montague Browning, Rear Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt, Commodore Brandt, the captain of the Queen Elizabeth, two naval secretaries and an interpreter.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, becomes unbecoming age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, dull, a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it restores so naturally and evenly. You simply moisten sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and fascinating. All you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

ADVISES TONIC

Medicine and Nourishing Food for Gripped Convalescents.

Pure Milk Best Nourishment While it is Believed That Three Grain Cadomene Tablets is Tonic Required—Gives Reasons.

The victims of colds and la grippe should abstain from excesses of all kinds while convalescent. Even excessive eating of injudicious foods is not without its danger. Pure milk drunk slowly is the most nourishing food known. Take it freely.

Weakness, languor, aches and pains, tremors and nervousness assail the convalescent. Appetite is feeble, the digestion faulty, bowels coctive and the victim wonders if real health will ever return.

A good reliable tonic medicine, composed of iron-peptonate, gentian, calumba, calisaya, palmetto root, nux vomica and phosphide, will be found at drug stores under the name of three grain Cadomene Tablets. It is taken as per directions to improve the vital functions, and hasten the complete recovery to health and strength. Elderly people are particularly requested to use this fine tonic treatment, before another attack of disease assails them. Every package is guaranteed to please the purchaser or money refunded.—Advertisement.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR AND STOP DANDRUFF

Hair becomes charming, wavy, lustrous and thick in few moments.

Every bit of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

For a few cents you can save your hair, and double its beauty. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and charming as a young girl's after applying some Danderine. After any shampoo—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt, excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine revives every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.—Advertisement.

BREAKS A COLD IN A HURRY

"Pape's Cold Compound" is pleasant and affords Instant Relief.

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a cold.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffling. Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only a few cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine. Don't accept something else.—Advertisement.

Hundreds of people have written us that they have entirely overcome stomach trouble by this simple method, and we believe that if you will try it you will be surprised at the results. How To Avoid INFLUENZA

Nothing you can do will so effectually protect you against the Influenza or Grippe epidemic as keeping your organs of digestion and elimination active and your system free from poisonous accumulations.

Doctors and health authorities everywhere are warning people of the danger of constipation, and advising, and urging everyone to see that the bowels and other eliminative organs act freely and regularly.

Ordinary laxatives, purges and cathartics, salts, oils, calomel and the like, are good enough to clean out the system, but do not strengthen the weakened organs; they do not build up vitality.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome constipation and get your system in such shape that you can feel reasonably sure of resisting disease. You can do so if you will just get a 25c. box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a while.

NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant, easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive organs, as well as eliminative organs, promotes good digestion, causes the body to get the nourishment from all food it eats, gives you a good, hearty appetite, strengthens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleaning out. The accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR Tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best. Sold and recommended by druggists.

"YOUR friend Lees-Brown is here still, I understand?" he began.

"Yes, he is," I answered. "He is dining here, I believe, to-night. I have not seen him since—"

He glanced up from his [p]aper. His voice was more natural, and there was a trace of a smile upon his lips.

"Since the night of the [r]evolution, I suppose," he interrupted. "Lees-Brown has been about, that sort of thing, ever since the outbreak of war. I wonder if he has ever mentioned to you a certain little matter in connection with his visit to Berlin?"

I looked at him steadily. I knew perfectly well what he was talking about, but I was not going to help him.

"I don't remember that he has," I answered. "Lees-Brown is a very old friend of mine, and we have had many talks together, but I cannot recall anything of the sort."

He looked at me for a moment in silence. Then he rose to his feet and walked to the window. He stood there for a few minutes, looking out into the darkness. When he turned around again I was lighting a cigarette.

"Mrs. Lees-Brown," he said, "is a very charming lady, whose society I have always enjoyed. I am sorry that I cannot say as much for her husband. Lees-Brown is a very dangerous person to have at large in these times. He is a man who, I am convinced, has committed more than one act of treachery against his country. I am afraid that I shall be compelled to ask you to let me have a few words with him before he leaves your house."

I shook my head firmly.

"I am sorry," I said, "but I cannot do that. Lees-Brown is my guest. I cannot allow him to be insulted in my house."

He looked me steadily in the face. There were lines about his mouth which I had never noticed before, and his eyes were bright and piercing. He was certainly a man who, in any sphere of life, would have been a power.

"Do you realize, Sir Everard," he asked, "that you are harboring a traitor?"

I shook my head.

"I do not believe it," I answered. "I know Lees-Brown intimately, and I am quite sure that he is nothing of the sort. I am afraid that you are misinformed."

He walked across the room and back again. His manner was restless, and he was obviously ill at ease. He could hear, moreover, the sounds of many of them any moment. There was a knock at the door, and Mrs. Lees-Brown entered. She looked from one to the other of us quickly.

"I hope I am not disturbing you," she said, "but I cannot help thinking that there is something wrong. Sir Everard looks as though he had come to arrest somebody."

THANKSGIVING DINNER TO COME HIGH

"Turkey at 65 Cents and "Fixins" Will Be in Like Proportion

By ELIZABETH ELLAM

"Thanksgiving dinners will be higher in price than ever before," said one Boston market manager, "but there will be no scarcity of anything, and every market man in town will be glad to see Mother Hubbard." There are no "ifs" in connection with the Thanksgiving turkey. "Turkeys are high enough," said another dealer, "but there is no shortage. Everybody can have one."

Outside in the window two fine specimens of the turkey family strutted proudly in the window. Every ray of light shining on their feathers seemed to reflect a dollar mark, and every shake of their proud wattles seemed to say "Money, money." Of course, 65 cents a pound isn't a dollar—still it is enough.

ONCE 40 CENTS.

Time was, five years ago, when 40 cents a pound was a top price for turkeys, and when they climbed to 45 cents they were a well nigh prohibitive luxury. And now comes the highest price of all—the 65 to 67.

"They will be plentiful, as far as we can see now," the turkey dealer reassuringly said. The big stocks won't begin to come in until Monday, but it looks as if we would have enough to meet the demand.

"If you don't want turkey, then there are chickens in plenty. Good ones are bringing fifty and fifty-five cents a pound and will average about that, at this time next week. They are good weight. Some are six and a half pounds, others average five. A pair of chickens is a good enough Thanksgiving dinner for anyone.

So there you are, Mrs. Housewife. If you're planning to celebrate this—the grandest, most glorious Thanksgiving we have ever known—here's your chance. There will be turkey enough or chickens enough to go around, and there really won't be such a great big difference in the prices.

Oh, yes—there are other substitutes. There's goose, for instance. In the ice box window of one of the best stalls several snowy breasted geese loomed up among the yellow chickens and the turkeys enthroned there. The Thanksgiving goose will bring 48 cents a pound, and he will weigh from twelve to fourteen pounds. But remember—Mrs. Housewife—he will be a wasteful goose, for underneath that gleaming white skin is a thick, thick padding of yellow fat that will be an expensive luxury—at 48 cents a pound!

DUCKS NOT PLENTIFUL.

Ducks will bring about the same price. The supply here is not plentiful, though the birds average well, according to the marketmen.

You don't care for geese or for duck—and you refuse to invest all your allowance in turkey or chicken, Mrs. Housewife? Then, how would a little plump suckling pig do for the piece de resistance of your Thanksgiving meal?

Roasted to a crisp, tempting brown that makes you think always of Lamb's essay, bearing in his mouth either a red apple or a rosebud, the little suckling pig is a delicacy known to the English, but not so well known to our real, genuine Yankee housewife. He is not to be despised as belonging to the plebeian family of porkers, for he is a really genuine luxury, and not always to be had.

Today, in the Quincy Market, I found scores of these baby piglets, white and plump and just waiting to be taken home and roasted. They weigh around fourteen pounds, and they cost from about 34 to 48 apiece. Nothing cheap about our little pig friend, is there? Yet he comes under the head of very delectable food.

PORK LIKELY TO BE HIGH.

Next in order comes plain tinkletum—but appetizing roast pork. Good roasting pork was quoted to me in the market stalls at 40 cents a pound, but it is expected that it will increase in price early next week. "Many people eat roast pork on Thanksgiving, and it will probably go from 42 to 45 cents a pound. People will want it then." And there you are. People will want it—and for that reason the price will advance. No reason—save that PEOPLE WANT IT.

Those are the substitutes for the Thanksgiving turkey, and the prices for both the turkey and the substitutes listed.

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Dartmouth and Brown will do the honors at Braves Field, Saturday afternoon, and their gridiron tilt promises to afford Boston enthusiasts one of their big treats of this interesting, though somewhat lean, football season.

While neither eleven has a clean slate this Fall, the playing of both aggregations has been snappy, and their performance, under present football conditions at the leading colleges, has been most creditable.

Statistics from Hanover make known the fact that the Big Green has the lightest varsity machine in the college's history. There was a time when Dartmouth was noted for its powerful, pudgy aggregations. But not this Fall.

It has a single real big fellow in its line. That's Bevan, left tackle, who stands six feet four inches and tips the scales at 210 pounds. Then, there's Richardson, right guard, a 175-pounder. Otherwise, there isn't any heft to Dartmouth's line, at all, at all.

NO JUMBOES IN ACTION.

Brown, too, will scale lighter than usual, though, at that, it is expected to have a little "on" the Big Green as regards the weight question. Brown's huskiest member is Shurtleff, its tidy left tackle. He weighs 183 pounds. Captain Josh Weeks, right end, ranks next. He's a 180-pounder.

Four Greater Boston boys are down to be in the Hanoverians' lineup. The star of the quartet is Phil Threshie; in fact, the former Brookline High boy is one of the East's best bets this Fall.

Threshie was at Brookline High a year ago and distinguished himself by making his letter in five sports—baseball, football, hockey, swimming and rowing. He's a nineteen-year-old and every inch an athlete. Phil has been shining at fullback for Dartmouth all season. He's had the proper heft to his punts and is a tidy ground-gainer.

Bunty Ross, right end, is a former Melrose High performer, whose school record was a good one, and Kearns, right tackle, hails from St. John's School, Danvers.

MATTY BALDWIN BENEFIT CARD CHOICE ONE

By RINGSIDE

What promises to be the biggest affair of its kind ever staged in Boston takes place tonight at the Arena when the monster benefit in aid of the family of the late Matty Baldwin, gallant little Bunker Hill boy and world's famous lightweight, gets under way.

Leading boxers in the East, including Jack Britton, Tommy Robson, Johnny Dundee, Barney Adair, Benny Colgar, Frankie (Young) Britt, Willie Jackson, Jeff Smith, Lew Tendler, Joe Welsh and Johnny Mealty, in addition to a host of the local boys, will be seen in action.

The committee states that the bouts are to be of the real sort too, not merely exhibition affairs. Besides the boys already mentioned, some of the old-timers have agreed to turn the hands of time backward a bit and perform as they did in the old days, accounts of which have appeared in Ten Years Ago in Sport World.

Besides boxing, the fans will be entertained in a dozen other ways. Come up and see for yourself. N. B. —Tell your boss you may not be in to work in the morning.

The Commercial A.C. comes through tomorrow night with a ripping good card. Harry Carlson and Young Sacco are down for the feature bout of twelve rounds, and will be supported by the following:

Eddie Barcelli of Quincy vs. Young Bruno of East Boston in a setto; Johnny Russell of Lawrence vs. Willie Jones in a punching act, and Charley Brenan of East Boston and Sam Jinsky of Lawrence in an old-fashioned slugging match.

JACK DEMPSEY MATCHED WITH BILLY MISKE

New York, Nov. 21.—Billy Miske and Jack Dempsey have been matched for the Thanksgiving Day event at the Olympia A. A. of Philadelphia. The two boxed in St. Paul last Spring and went ten rounds. No decision was rendered.

Newton High and Cambridge Latin were billed to clash in their Triangular Football League game at Newtonville this afternoon. Play at 2:30 o'clock.

Modern Man Wants the News While It IS News

This explains the phenomenal growth and immense circulation of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The AMERICAN is an up-to-the-minute newspaper.

Everywhere in New England the BOSTON AMERICAN is represented by CAPABLE reporters of long experience. Every one of them knows his district and its people.

In the city of Boston, the AMERICAN boasts one of the most evenly-balanced city staffs ever assembled by any Boston newspaper. Morton Birge, Paul H. Drake, Thomas F. Phelan, John T. Lambert, Rev. A. E. George, Ralph Frye, John W. Moran, Jr., Charles O. Power, EVERYBODY knows the names of the AMERICAN'S "stars."

Outside of New England, the AMERICAN is represented by the International News Service, whose wartime achievements have established new records.

In France—or on the way to Germany: Bert Ford, Damon Runyon, John T. Parkerson, Newton G. Parke, Henry G. Wales.

In London, Earle C. Reeves; Paris, John McHugh Stuart; Washington, John Edwin Nevin,

Wherever there are Americans, THERE is an AMERICAN reporter.

A progressive NEWSPAPER has a progressive FOLLOWING. A progressive following means the young, active, aggressive, thoughtful and SUCCESSFUL element in the community. It represents the element in the community that is thinking, striving and succeeding, which is progressing mentally AND materially.

SUCH a clientele is MOST valuable, NOT ONLY FOR NEWSPAPERS, BUT FOR ADVERTISERS.

B. C. WORKING HARD FOR HARVARD

Coach Fred O'Brien of Boston College planned pitting the varsity against the scrubs in a rugged practice session on the University Heights gridiron this afte-noon. He plans using the same line-up against Harvard Saturday as took part in the Fordham game. Andy Kelly and Lieutenant Renehan are helping out the squad, but O'Brien stoutly denies the rumor that he intends using them against the Crimson.

MAT MEN MEET TONIGHT IN STAR BOUTS

John Kilonis, who likes to revel in the rough stuff in wrestling, will probably find that Pinky Gardner, now in his best form, can do a bit of this kind of work himself when they get together at the Grand Opera House tonight. They will go to a positive finish.

Cyclone Rhea, speedy Dane, will meet George (Big) Ventras, Berlin blacksmith, in the other number.

BIG JOHN ANDERSON IS MOURNING SON'S DEATH

Worcester, Nov. 21.—John Anderson, former American League first baseman, who lives in West Boylston, is mourning the loss of his son, Private Frank J. Anderson of Company G, 26th Infantry, who was killed in action in France October 5. Young Anderson was an athlete of rare promise; in fact, promised to become equally as famous in baseball as his father, who, ten years ago, was rated with the best hitters in the Johnsonian circuit.

TED ROMAINE TO PILOT 1919 MIDDLESEX ELEVEN

The Middlesex School football eleven of Concord has elected Theodore C. (Ted) Romaine of New York city, speedy halfback, its captain for 1919. Romaine has played on the team for the past two seasons. He is also a member of the school hockey and baseball aggregations.

Letters will be awarded members of this Fall's eleven, even though it played but one game on account of the Spanish influenza epidemic. Ice hockey practice will start as soon as real Winter weather sets in.

MIDDIES WIND UP WORK FOR GREAT LAKES GAME

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21.—The Naval Academy eleven finished its last practice in preparation for Saturday's contest with the Great Lakes team, under the glare of searchlights and with a white ball. This was made necessary by the academy regulations which only permit Dobie's men a little more than half an hour of daylight for work. Hutter, of the backfield, is on the sick list with tonsilitis.

SOCCER PLAYER DRAWS SUSPENSION FOR YEAR

The Boston and District Soccer League has handed Larry Flannelly of the Lynn Hibs a year's suspension for hitting Referee H. Ritchie during last Saturday's game with United Shoe at Beverly. Coleman of the same team is in a jam with the league, but his case goes over until the next meeting of the colons.

CARPENTIER TO FORCE JESS INTO RING

By JACK VEIOCK.

Georges Carpentier, premier French boxer, has the American fistic public all steamed up with expectancy today.

His announced expectation to visit the United States as soon as the French army is demobilized, which may be in January, has awakened a new wave of interest and speculation in the heavyweight division here.

His coming is expected to bring the heavyweights, especially Jess Willard, to life with a sudden start. And popular opinion, it is whispered here, will have much to do with the selection of his opponent for a big fistic battle of real international importance.

LEO LEARY TAKES HOLD OF LITTLE BLDG. SQUAD

Leo Leary, who did so much for Harvard football in peace times, has taken charge of the Little Building eleven and is out to get his machine going in high for the battle with Radio School Thanksgiving Day morning. Pat Angus, Rindge Tech's former idol, and Everett Buckman, old Colby star, are recent additions to Little Building's squad. Tufts may be met on the Medford Oval Saturday.

Pitt Books Cleveland Game

Pittsburgh, Nov. 21.—Glenn Warner's strong Pitt eleven is to play the Cleveland Naval Reserves at Cleveland, November 30.

HARVARD TEAM LINE-UP NOT DECIDED

Coach Pooch Ketonis is undecided as to how he will line up Harvard's backfield for Saturday's game with Boston College. If he Hunneman's bad knee is sufficiently mended to allow him to do the punting, Bob Hoffman, tricky running back, will start the game; but if Ben finds he cannot punt his best, Coburn will get the call over Holmes. Coburn is good for forty to fifty-five yards per boot. Art Conden will be at the pivotal position.

While the Boston roller polo team won from Providence at the Arena, 6-1, it remains the Worcester aggregation for first place as the flying Worcester five defeated Cambridge, 4-2, and Providence put up a splendid game for Boston, while Thompson turned in Providence's one goal.

At Worcester the home member thrashed Cambridge, 14-3; at Quincy, Harding's great work gave Lowell a 6-5 victory.

HERE'S A FIGHTER WITH REAL FIGHTER'S NAME

It has happened: a preliminary fighter is using a real fighter's name in Washington. The scrapper with the name of "Kid" Peace is doing and goes on at the opening show of the Twenty-Ninth Century A. C. of Philadelphia next Monday night. Leo Johnson, New York colored lightweight champion, and Al Wilks of Hartford meet in the feature bout.

ROCCO-JUNG BOUT TOPS HAPPY HOUR BILL OF SHOW

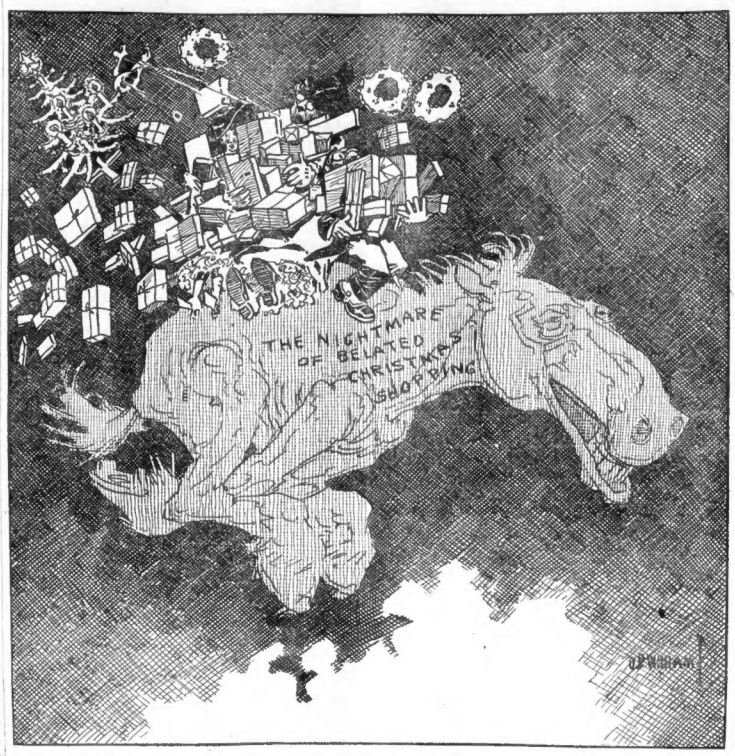
A Word to the Wise: Do It Now!



Mr. Endicott and the Public Safety Committee

The dissolution of the Committee of One Hundred on Public Safety brings to the public mind consideration of the incalculable services rendered by the executive manager of that body.

Conspicuous as executive manager is Henry B. Endicott. Twenty-three months ago Mr. Endicott closed his desk in the office of the largest shoe manufacturing company in the world, the firm of Johnson & Endicott, and did not return to it again until the armistice was signed. During that period of intermission he devoted himself wholly to his great public duties as executive manager of the Committee on Public Safety.

It may be said without making an invidious distinction that Mr. Endicott and his immediate lieutenants, and also Mr. Storrow, as Fuel Administrator, were the whole committee. It has been, however, Mr. Endicott's good fortune perhaps, and certainly the good fortune of the Commonwealth, that the most critical duties fell within the sphere of Mr. Endicott's personal activity. The AMERICAN has not now in mind any instance where Mr. Endicott has been criticised unfavorably for any of the multitude of important things that he was called upon to do which were so full of opportunities for mistakes, considering our human disposition to err.

It requires more than an ordinary personality and more than ordinary experience and ability to handle and to settle the number of serious strike situations which were thrown upon Mr. Endicott's hands. It required a man who could gain the confidence at the outset both of the employers and the employes, for Mr. Endicott wisely required that before he would undertake to arbitrate, the employers must agree to take back the men without discrimination, and both the employer and employe must agree to consider his decision as final. Having won the confidence of both sides to this extent, it was necessary for Mr. Endicott to decide the controversy so justly that in future controversies both sides would be willing to trust him again. It is quite astonishing that Mr. Endicott could have fulfilled these delicate requirements with such nicety that he was able to hold the confidence of both the employer and employe class throughout the period of the war, and could thus settle 200 strikes, involving half a million working people and incalculable consequences to the productive power of our country during the struggle.

Massachusetts troops were the first troops to be fully equipped among all the militias of the States for overseas duty. This was largely the work of the Committee on Public Safety. The AMERICAN is informed that in Massachusetts the Committee on Public Safety was the first to establish dental hygiene forces and a moral welfare committee at the cantonments.

We all remember the great and vitally prompt service which the committee rendered to our suffering sister city of Halifax, Nova Scotia. The news of the Halifax disaster reached Boston at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. At 10 o'clock that night, so prompt and efficient was the work of Mr. Endicott's committee, that a trainload of physicians, nurses, food and clothes left North Station in a blizzard for Halifax. This Boston relief expedition, organized by Mr. Endicott and his compatriots, reached the Canadian city before relief came to her from the other Canadian provinces.

The work of the committee in preventing profiteering in food was valuable. This has always been a difficult and invidious task in which it is almost impossible to escape some form of criticism. The committee did not fail to escape it, and on this question alone it deserves criticism. The action of the committee against the fish profiteers at the Fish Pier was not as vigorous and as effective as it was in other directions.

The contribution of the committee to the campaign against our terrible visitation by influenza was most noteworthy. All of these activities were a small part of the labors of the committee, but they were an important part of the work which helped to win the war, and in all of them Mr. Endicott and his lieutenants, Mr. Ratshesky and Mr. Phelan, played an important part.

No one can study the character of Mr. Endicott's public service, nor indeed his character as a great employer of labor and his decision in the last national election, without appreciating his will to public service. Mr. Charles Schwab has formed the habit, recently, of repeating with prophetic earnestness the statement that from now onward the American people will cease that undemocratic and indecent habit of looking up to the possessors of great private wealth and will recognize only an aristocracy of service. Among the first ranks of this aristocracy Mr. Endicott in the last twenty-three months has earned for himself a place. Nor is his capacity and will to public service, we hope, ended by the armistice. He has that lean and hungry look which ordinarily indicates a man who can breast the currents of life at their widest span, even giving aid to some "tired Caesar."

Brave Men Are Always Gentlemen

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Wherever American soldiers have gathered in rest billets in France they have made friends with the children. Especial mention was made of this by Marshal Foch, who rightly considered it a mark of brave men.

Only cowards commit atrocities. Only cowards ravage homes and terrorize women and children.

No enemy ever accused American soldiers of cowardice. They have "treated 'em rough" on the battle line to such good purpose that the war was over a year before the French thought possible.

But once the Yankee soldier leaves the firing line he becomes kindly, gentle and helpful. They have been a revelation to the people of France, who have come to love them as they love their own sons.

No men who love children and understand and appreciate children can fail to arouse the affection of the people among whom they are placed. Pleasure in the presence of children has been the strong characteristic of all great Americans, from Lincoln down to the present time.

The conduct of the Yankees in France, in Belgium, in Italy, wherever they have been, has been such as to endear them to their comrades in arms and to excite a feeling akin to worship among the populace.

It was only to be expected. There is no race braver than the Americans and therefore no race more kindly and considerate. In battle the brave are to be feared, but they are never to be feared at any other time.

Always, as the old song says, "The loving are the daring."

More Truth Than Poetry

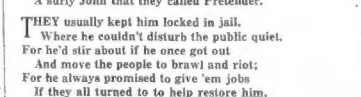
By James J. Montague

A Lost Race

IN days gone by when the job of king
Was the envy of all of the hoi polloi,
And the eldest lad of a royal dad
Was always the public's white-haired boy,
In every land there was found a chap
Whose face was long and whose means were slender,
Who claimed to own the crown and throne—
A surly John that they called Pretender.

THEY usually kept him locked in jail,
Where he couldn't disturb the public quiet,
For he'd stir about if he once got out
And move the people to brawl and riot;
For he always promised to give 'em jobs
If they all turned to to help restore him,
And he usually found a crowd around
Who loudly swore that they all were for him.

BUT now, when kings keep their special trains
Parked on the sidings, steamed and ready
To leave the place at a breakneck pace
As soon as conditions get unsteady,
When crowns are sold by the half-gross lots
And the highest thrones have no defenders,
From the Baltic Sea to Sicilee
There are absoLUTEly no pretenders.



Safety First in Other Days

The dispatch that cat-meat is being sold in Paris for rabbit recalls a couplet from the old song about the restaurant:

"We'll put the cat upon the bar
Where all the same may view
And then with rosy confidence
We'll serve the rabbit stew."

And That Is Nothing

With the Kaiser it isn't what he used to be, it's what he is today.

Mr. Tumulty Must Have Been Careless

"May I express my sincere admiration, etc."—Mr. Wilson's telegram to Lloyd George. Whatever became of the "not"?

Abundance

In Vienna, says a correspondent, the people are living on chestnuts. Anyone who has seen a Viennese comic opera has no fear that the Vienna public is likely to starve.

One Must Applaud His Judgment.

Von Tirpitz has taken refuge in Switzerland, which is the only country whose ships have not been sunk by his submarines.

I BORROWED Jerry.
WHO IS a small girl.
OF THE age of two.
AND TALKS a lot.
BUT FOR the life of me.
I CAN'T understand her.
AND I promised her mother.
I'D BE very careful.
AND GET her home.
BEFORE DINNER time.
AND WE started out
AND SHE wouldn't hold my hand.
AND WENT in all the doorways.
OF ALL the stores.
AND WENT up all the steps.
AND DOWN again.
AND UNDER the swinging doors.
OF A saloon.
AND IT took us half an hour.
TO GO two blocks.
AND I wanted to take her home.
BUT I didn't dare.
AND ON the car.
SHE WOULDN'T sit down.
AND I had trouble with her.
AND DROPPED my cane.
AND MY hat fell off.
AND SHE got away from me.
AND I left my seat to get her.
AND WE hit a curve.
AND I nearly wrecked a woman.
WITH A lot of packages.
WHEN I tried to save myself.
AND I reached Jerry.
AND HELD her on my lap.
AND SHE squirmed.
AND KEPT saying all the time.
"SOME MORE play."
AND POINTING to the woman.
AND SHE was a nice woman.
AND GAVE Jerry a chocolate.
AND I was afraid of it.
AND TRIED to get it away.
AND JERRY squeezed it.
SO I couldn't get it.
AND BETWEEN the two of us.
WE RUINED the chocolate.
SO WE couldn't eat it.
AND AT the next corner.
WE LEFT the car.
AND CLEANED ourselves up.
WITH MY handkerchief.
AND CROSSED the street.
TO GET another car.
AND GO home.
AND THEN I discovered.
THAT IN the excitement.
OF GOING out with Jerry.
I'D FORGOTTEN my pocketbook.
AND ALL the change I'd had.
WAS THE nickel.
I'D SPENT for carfare.
AND WE were standing there.
IN FRONT of a cigar store.
AND A man came out.
AND SPOKE to Jerry.
AND PUT a nickel in her hand.
AND I grabbed it.
AND WHEN we got home.
JERRY WAS asleep.
IN MY arms.
AND I forgave her.
AND WE'RE going out again.
NEXT WEDNESDAY.

I THANK you.

SAVED FROM DEATH BY A PRETTY FACE

By Winifred Black

A WESTERN girl had a quarrel with her sweetheart not long ago—not such a very serious quarrel to begin with.

Just something about some actress in a motion picture play.

He said it, and she didn't like it, and she said something else that he didn't like, and then he made a few remarks about what he thought of her and she gave him her full and free opinion of him, and by that time they were both half crazy.

And the woman snatched up a sharp knife and stabbed the man and killed him.

She was arrested and tried, and she was young and rather pretty and her eyes were large and soulful, and she wore a modest and becoming little frock and a discreet hat all during the trial, and whenever it was time to cry she cried, with telling effect.

The foreman of the jury cried, himself, every time she did—and as for the little grocer's clerk at the end of the jury box, he was almost hysterical.

The lawyers wrangled and fought, the court room was crowded with loafers, and the woman was acquitted and walked out of the courtroom as free as air.

I wonder what would have happened to her if she had been old and ugly?

I wonder what the verdict would have been if there had been a woman on that jury?

In Chicago, alone, twenty-five women have been acquitted on the charge of murder in the last eleven years.

Some of them killed a man in the heat of passion. Some of them committed murder deliberately for revenge.

And one or two of them took a human life for a chance at a little easy money, and not one of them was punished as the law directs that murder shall be punished.

A Strange Viewpoint

It's hard to get a man to convict a woman of any serious crime.

Chivalrous, considerate, such respecters of women that they cannot believe them guilty of any sort of crime.

I'm afraid I can't agree to this point of view.

We don't want to be judged as if we belonged to another race.

We are human beings first, and after that we're women, and after that we are either wives or mothers or sisters or daughters.

I know a man who never meets a woman in whom he takes the faintest interest without asking whose sister she is, or whose daughter.

He never seems to think of a woman as a separate entity at all. To him she is simply a piece of baggage, lugged around the world by some more or less fortunate—or more or less unfortunate—man.

Oh, yes, he's old-fashioned, He isn't old, but he's old-fashioned just the same.

He wouldn't convict a woman of murder—not if she was the most cold-blooded, cruel, wicked creature in the world.

Not he.

She'd be a woman to him—and that would settle it.

And yet, that man has been educated and taken care of and started in life by a woman.

Women Ruled Him

He speaks of her as "Poor, dear mother," and he often seems overwhelmed with a kind of speculative wonder as to how in the world he ever amounted to anything, handicapped as he was by the lack of good, strong, masculine influence.

I wonder if the foreman of the jury that let a woman go scot free after a cruel, inexcusable murder didn't look at things in a good deal the same way.

DID HANDWRITING ON WALL DOOM KAISER?

White Belshazzar and his nobles were feasting in the palace their power will end that of the empire was foretold by mysterious writing that appeared on the wall of the banquet hall. Modern Bible scholars have made the curious discovery that the strange handwriting also prophesied the fate of Kaiser Wilhelm and the tribe of Hohenzollerns. An explanation of the fateful prediction will be given in a special article in the next

Men Change Little.
The "Baby Vamp."
Bodies for Dogs.
Could You Die of Joy?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1918.)

Men change little, as Eugene, head waiter at the Monte Carlo Cafe de Paris, once said to Joseph Pulitzer twenty years ago, pointing out a table where sat James Gordon Bennett, Mademoiselle Liane de Pougy and some other cheerful ones.

"Twenty-five years," said Eugene, "I was a young man at Delmonico's in New York, then at the corner of Fourteenth street and Fifth avenue. I was head waiter, and there was Mr. Gordon Bennett raising 'ell. Now I am an old man and still head waiter, and here in Monte Carlo is Mr. Gordon Bennett still raising 'ell."

Six thousand years ago your grandfather, many times removed, stood in the Garden of Eden, accused, and said in Bible Latin, "Mulier me decepit — "the woman tempted me."

Today in Chicago, a broker famillarly known as "Darling Dave," accused of a crime by a girl of fifteen, says through his lawyer that the girl tempted him and is a "Baby Vamp," by which is meant an immature vampire.

Americans had heard of the "Baby Grand" piano, "Baby Tank" and other diminutives. "Baby Vamp," invented by a worthy son of Adam, is new.

A reliable correspondent reveals the fact that Bulgarian savages murdered Serbians in a most cold-blooded way, taking a hundred at a time, cutting their throats. And "the village dogs would bring into the streets human arms and human heads which they tore from the bodies of the murdered men."

If the King of Bulgaria had happened to sell out to the Allies instead of to Prussia—he was frankly for sale to the highest bidder—Bulgaria would be one of the Allies now, and the very men that murdered the helpless and gave their bodies to the dogs, would gather round the peace table with the great powers of the world guaranteeing them autonomy, authority and democracy forever.

How many of those Balkan peoples that live by and in brigandage and brutality are fit to paddle their own canoe as democrats? Can you make a self-governing democracy of Balkan brigandage?

Lest we forget, and mistake ourselves for perfection, observe that in highly civilized Chicago the homes of the negro families are dynamited. Their crime? They moved into a white neighborhood.

This would indicate that humanity has not quite reached a stage that can be described as "all little brothers together."

Europe, adding up the dead and wounded, finds totals appalling. England had over 800,000 men killed, France 500,000; millions were wounded and suffered agony.

War is horrible, BUT ignorance and indifference are more costly than war.

In four years 600,000 British were killed by war. In the same number of years a greater number of Americans, especially young children, were killed by preventable diseases, poisoned milk, high prices of food, compelling malnutrition; lack of sun in dark tenements, dust blown into their lungs from dirty streets.

It would be well for mothers and children if posterity could become as much excited about needless death in peace as about killings in battle.

Burke, the great English "Liberal," grieved over the number of French nobles executed by legal decree during the French revolution in a short time.

And in the same time, in England, a larger number of poor devils were hanged by the neck until they were dead for stealing sheep and other trifles.

It seemed horrible to Burke to execute noblemen, whose selfish class had kept France miserable and poor.

He saw nothing horrible in hanging a man guilty of stealing when he was hungry.

The French revolution stopped torture of innocent witnesses and hangings for petty larceny. It was a good revolution, and those noblemen executed would be dead now, anyhow.

Possession makes the human conservative.

Joseph Pulitzer, who accumulated $25,000,000 as a newspaper man, dropping much of his radicalism in the process, said most sarcastically, "Brisbane, Brisbane, if you ever get any money, which you never will, you will find that it will change your opinions."

What is your idea of happiness? What piece of news would make you die of joy?

William G. Riley, fifty-one years old, was sentenced to life imprisonment twenty-three years ago. He was a good prisoner. The warden told him his sentence had been commuted to fifty years.

Riley burst a blood vessel with joy and has been in the hospital ever since. Now the Governor of Michigan has pardoned him absolutely, and they don't dare tell him for fear he will die.

Happiness is, after all, only comparative.
